A BRIEF HISTORY

N 1790, MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA ceded portions of their territory for the purpose of establishing the Federal City. For the next 10 years, the Federal City was policed by constables appointed by these two states. In 1802, when the original charter of Washington was approved, police authority was centralized and power was granted to the city itself to establish patrols, impose fines, and establish inspection and licensing procedures. Until the creation of the Metropolitan Police Department in 1861, the city had only an auxiliary watch with one captain and 15 policemen.

In 1861, President Abraham Lincoln took personal interest in founding a regular police department for the District of Columbia. It was a time of constant danger in the Nation's Capital. With the beginning of the Civil War, an army was billeted in the city, government employees were increased by ten-fold, and hordes of unsavory elements descended upon the District's few square miles.

President Lincoln personally dispatched an emissary from the newly created Board of Metropolitan Police Commissioners to New York City to become familiar with that system, which itself was based on the world-acclaimed Metropolitan London Police Department.

The ideas and knowledge gained from this study led to the creation of the Metropolitan Police Department on August 6, 1861. In September of that year, attorney William B. Webb was appointed the first Superintendent of the Police, with an authorized force of 10 sergeants and a number of patrolmen as needed, but not to exceed 150. Up to 10 precincts were authorized. The Superintendent of Police was paid $1,500 annually, with sergeants earning $600 and patrolmen $480.

The sergeants and most of the personnel for two precincts were sworn in that September. Officers had to be US citizens, able to read and write the English language, have been DC residents for two years, never convicted of a crime, between 25 and 45 years of age, and at least five feet, six inches tall. The men went to work right away in 12-hour shifts, seven days a week with no days off and no vacations. They were issued neither equipment nor badges, and they had to obtain their own handguns. The first arrest made by a Metropolitan Police officer was on a charge of intoxication.

INTERNAL AFFAIRS BUREAU/INTERNAL AFFAIRS DIVISION

Detective John Hendrick

etective Hendrick is tasked with investigating fatal and serious use of force cases that are complex due to the charged nature of these investigations. These cases require an analytical and detailed approach that has been consistently demonstrated by Detective Hendrick.

One such case in 2015, involved the investigation of a high profile incident that involved an armed kidnapping and homicide. This particular case not only involved a police shooting, but also a use of force that involved a vehicle, which ended in a multi-jurisdiction pursuit. The videos obtained through Detective Hendricks' canvass for private and public video proved to be very useful during the investigation. Additionally, Detective Hendrick relied on his use of force training, analysis of departmental policies, consultation with the agency's training staff, and United States Attorneys' Office to investigate and make a recommendation relative to this unusual and uncommon use of force case.

EXECUTIVE OFFICE OF THE CHIEF OF POLICE

Commander Ralph Ennis

ommander Ralph Ennis has served the Metropolitan Police Department for over 21 years. In that time, his focus and dedication to the agency has allowed for his ascension through the ranks to his current position working for MPD's Chief of Police. Commander Ennis is an intricate part of MPD's Command Staff and provides valuable input into the operations of the Department. In 2015, amongst many other duties, Commander Ennis was assigned to the body-worn camera (BWC) program. Through his leadership, MPD developed what is recognized as one of the most comprehensive BWC policies in the nation. This policy set the foundation for a successful program. This, coupled with Commander Ennis' direction, drove not only a successful initial deployment of BWC within the Department, but also drives daily success in operations. These items are of special note. The deployment was completed on a short timeline, and introduced a completely new technology and new processes into the Department. Daily operational success required organizational change at not only the officer level, but at all levels of management up to and including Bureau Chiefs. Of even further significance, MPD is one of the first of the major cities to deploy BWC in huge numbers. As such, there was no template and minimum guidance from other organizations. In fact, multiple law enforcement organizations have contacted and/or visited with MPD to learn about our BWC polices, our implementation of and how we operate the program. Beyond influence within the Department, Commander Ennis has tirelessly championed the program with the community. He has engaged in multiple speaking opportunities to advocate on the program's behalf, thereby ensuring an understanding and buy-in from MPD's constituency. For taking on this enormous, vastly important project that will not only serve and protect our members, the community and the agency as a whole, Commander Ennis is the Executive Office of the Chief of Police Bureau Employee of the Year.

Detective Mason also makes herself available to other members of the unit when called upon to do so, whether it's to handle a court appearance, execute a search warrant, or some other task that her co-workers request assistance with. She has applied for and received numerous search and arrest warrants and has developed working relationships with members of the Office of Attorney General and the U.S. Attorney's Office.

SECOND DISTRICT

Detective Nicholas Oliver

etective Oliver performs his investigative duties at the highest degree along with an unparalleled level of professionalism and skill. During such duties, he treats his victims and witnesses in a respectful, responsive, and compassionate manner. His attention to detail and determination to exhaust all leads in both property and violent crimes helps with convictions in cases and keeping violent criminals and thieves off the streets. His case write ups, on scene investigations, arrest and search warrant affidavits, and case jackets, are extremely detailed and well documented.

Detective Nicholas Oliver maintains a high level of productivity with little to no supervision. Detective Oliver accomplished a 26% closure rate while being assigned 285 cases. To achieve this while maintaining a current case load required discipline, organizational skills, and the tireless pursuit of any and all investigative leads. It shall be noted that the majority of the assigned cases were not domestic related or ones in which the suspect was known. Detective Oliver has also maintained a good work relationship with his peers as well as his officials.

DISTRICT DETECTIVES OF THE YEAR

THIRD DISTRICT

Detective James Gamble

omestic violence does not discriminate. Victims can be of any age, sex, race, culture, religion, education, employment or marital status. Domestic violence claims many victims, both direct and indirect. It takes a unique person to investigate cases of domestic violence. One must be self-motivated, a good listener, compassionate, resilient, able to maintain self-control, and modest; all while working with various persons, groups and agencies. Investigator Gamble possesses all of these qualities. In fact, one of Investigator Gamble's greatest strengths is showing sympathy toward victims of violent crime.

FOURTH DISTRICT

Detective Joseph Boehler

etective Joseph Boehler has demonstrated a strong ability to solve complex and difficult cases. In the summer of 2015, the Fourth District had multiple first degree burglaries in the Mt. Pleasant and upper Columbia Heights areas. In each burglary, an individual was entering occupied residences early in the morning, stealing purses, and then using stolen credit cards for items at local 7-11 convenience stores. Detective Boehler developed a suspect, and subsequently closed nine B1 and B2 cases with the arrest of the suspect, who was recently indicted and is currently pending trial. In another set of cases, six burglaries/ unlawful entries occurred in the Fourth District during December 2015 and one B2 occurred in the Fifth District. There were multiple witnesses, who provided MD partial tags 1917. Fourth District officers spotted the vehicle, and after a bailout and foot chance, a suspect was stopped. Detective Boehler conducted a show-up with one of the witnesses and the suspect was positively identified and arrested. It was discovered the vehicle he was operating had been stolen from Greenbelt, MD. Boehler worked quickly to obtain consent to search [after driving out to Greenbelt] from the vehicle owner, and as a result, multiple electronic items were recovered from the vehicle, and have been returned to their rightful owners. In addition, the suspect arrested had five active burglary warrants from the 4th and 5th Districts, and four pending print hits from 4D – closing a total of 16 cases against the suspect.

Detective Bank is assigned to investigate robberies of establishments, carjackings and violent crimes that occur in the Fifth District. With little to no solid leads in most of his cases, Detective Bank's persistent follow-up and determination results in suspect development and eventually case closures. Detective Bank's dedication to his position extends well pass the closures. He follows his cases through to ensure that they are successfully prosecuted. In fact, the vast majority of Detective Bank's cases are so well investigated, that they result in pre-indictment pleas by the defendants, earning praise from Assistant United States Attorneys for his thorough case preparation. Detective Bank is well received by his peers, United States Attorneys and supervisors. Detective Bank has a positive attitude, never complains and continuously demonstrates a strong work ethic. It is the extreme pleasure of the Fifth District Detectives Unit to bestow this title upon Detective Jeremy Bank.

As a member of the unit's Robbery Squad, Detective Edelen has been credited for closing numerous robberies and violent crime over the course of the year. Detective Edelen was instrumental in closing an armed robbery spree of taxi cabs drivers during October and November 2015. During this period, the District had over seven armed or attempted armed robberies of taxi cab drivers. The frequency and violence of the robberies were escalating and there were few leads to work on. Detective Edelen took initiative and was able to recognize a pattern based off the drop off locations, and believed that the suspect likely lived in one of 3 buildings. Detective Edelen searched databases and numerous records, and was able to develop a possible suspect, who was subsequently identified as the perpetrator of the robberies. Once arrested, the suspect confessed to a multitude of robberies throughout the city, and subsequently charged with 7 counts of robbery while armed. This is just an example of the quality of investigative efforts that Detective Robert Edelen put in to investigating his assigned cases.

EARTH CONSERVATION CORPS

Robert Nixon, Sarah Nixon, Brenda Richardson and Rodney Stotts

n the summer of 2014, the Metropolitan Police Department introduced Youth Creating Change [YCC], a program to work with youth ages 14-19. The goal of YCC was to engage youth from some of the city's most underserved and challenged neighborhoods in a youth leadership development program. The Earth Conservation Corps has served youth in the district for over 25 years, providing job training and environmental stewardship opportunities along the Anacostia River. In 2014, the ECC joined forces to work with the YCC Program, assisting with developing training opportunities, providing supplies and materials, and contributing the expertise of their staff and volunteers, as well as participating in the majority of YCC activities. Since the program's inception, over 125 youth have participated in four cohorts of YCC. This would not have been possible without the commitment and partnership of the Earth Conservation Corps. MPD has an invaluable relationship with the Earth Conservation Corps and supports the mission to make DC the best city in which to live.

Community Engagement Academy. In partnership with our Community Engagement Academy, Collegiate Internship Program, and the USHMM's Bringing the Lessons Home (BTLH) interns, approximately 30 members of the community went through a day long discussion regarding the role of police officers in today's society.

Mr. Appelbaum and his team led a deliberate, engaging and meaningful conversation between members of the public and law enforcement regarding current issues in policing and considerations from historical events, as observed through each member's guided tour through the museum. Community members later reflected on how much the experience of going through the USHMM with members of MPD impacted and affected their thoughts on many of the current issues in law enforcement. Mr. Appelbaum has greatly enhanced the relationship between the USHMM and the Department, and continues to work to expand this important relationship.
