Message from Former Chief Newsham

The year 2020 started out simply enough, without any major events – either planned by human beings or brought to us by Mother Nature. However, the year that started simply grew into one with myriad challenges. This Annual Report provides numbers related to crime, arrests, staffing and initiatives in 2020. However, a year with such turmoil cannot be adequately captured in statistics. In March, the COVID-19 pandemic shut down cities around the world, including the District of Columbia. While many people stayed at home, members of the Metropolitan Police Department continued to work in person day after day. Many members got sick, and some lives were lost to the virus, but throughout it all, MPD supported residents and essential workers in the District of Columbia, 24-7.

As the nation adjusted to the prolonged impact of COVID-19, it was upended again by murder of George Floyd in May 2020. Large demonstrations against police misconduct took place in major cities and small towns. In the District, the area near 15th and H Streets, NW – in the shadow of the White House – was a focal point of these protests. While most individuals demonstrated for reform peacefully, some people tried to send their message using violence. MPD worked to strike a careful balance between protecting the essential rights to free speech for everyone in the District, keeping protestors safe, and maintaining a safe city for everyone not engaged in protest. This city and the members of the Metropolitan Police Department continue to learn from this experience. There is a renewed commitment to addressing these issues through dialogue and change. The area named Black Lives Matter Plaza by Mayor Bowser now serves as a constant reminder of the power of speech and the importance of the struggle for racial justice and fair criminal justice systems.

The efforts of our sworn and professional members during a year that brought many challenges and adversities are truly commendable. I am amazed by their commitment to supporting the MPD and its efforts to fight crime and build safer, stronger communities. Members of the MPD, along with the individuals, organizations and agencies we partner with, deserve the the utmost recognition and honor as they help make the District of Columbia a city we are proud to call home.

As we closed out 2020, I announced my retirement from the Metropolitan Police Department. It was a bittersweet announcement, but, after 31 years, it was time to move on. It is with pride that look back at my career with the Metropolitan Police Department. And it is with optimism that I see a bright future for the MPD under the leadership of Chief Robert J. Contee, III.

Peter Newsham
Chief of Police (Sept 2016- Dec 2020)

Peter Newsham joined the MPD in 1989 and rose quickly through the ranks, serving in a number of district operational assignments. He was promoted to Commander of the Second District in January 2000, and then, in June 2002, Newsham was promoted again to Assistant Chief in charge of the Office of Professional Responsibility (OPR), which included the Internal Affairs Division, Civil Rights and Force Investigation Division and Compliance Monitoring Team, responsible for overseeing the MPD's Memorandum of Agreement with the US Department of Justice. Newsham subsequently served as Assistant Chief in Charge of ROC-North (2004-2001); the Internal Affairs Bureau (2007-2009); and the Investigative Services Bureau (2009-2016).

Mayor Muriel Bowser appointed Newsham Interim Chief of Police on September 15, 2016; he was named Chief of the Metropolitan Police Department on February 23, 2017 and sworn in on May 2, 2017. He retired on January 1, 2021.

Mission & Value Statement

MISSION

It is the mission of the Metropolitan Police Department to safeguard the District of Columbia and protect its residents and visitors with the highest regard for the sanctity of human life. We will strive at all times to accomplish our mission with a focus on service, integrity, and fairness by upholding our city's motto Justitia Omnibus—Justice for All.

VALUE STATEMENT

- Reduce crime and the fear of crime in the community.
- Strive to resolve all conflicts peacefully, valuing all human life, and ensuring that any use of force is proportional to the threat faced.
- Ensure that all allegations of misconduct and uses of force are investigated thoroughly and impartially.
- Instill a sense of transparency in operations with regular reports and outreach on critical events and community concerns.
- Sustain a culture of building and sustaining safe neighborhoods by making the relationship between police and neighborhoods paramount – tailoring policing to neighborhoods.
- Continue to work with other government agencies to address the issues faced by the mentally ill in our communities.
- Throughout the Department, focus on how the MPD can address youth issues.
- Build on what the MPD is doing right by continuously evaluating our strengths and weaknesses and position the MPD to be viewed and respected nationally and internationally as a model for how it serves the community.
- Build homeland security into the culture of the MPD and the community without creating fear.
- Foster a culture of innovation and initiative by leveraging technology.
- Support our employees as they work to serve the city.
- Encourage teamwork and leadership at every level of the police department and throughout the community.
- Emphasize that every MPD employee has the power to influence positive change – and encourage them to improve the service they provide to both the Department and community.
- Fortify these values by training and educating all of our members in the critical skills of communication, service and conflict resolution.

About Police Districts and Police Service Areas (PSAs)

There are seven police districts in Washington, DC, and each police district is divided into three sectors with a sector being an informal grouping of Police Service Areas (PSAs). There are a total of 57 PSAs in the District of Columbia.

Every resident lives in a Police Service Area (PSA), and every PSA has a team of police officers and officials assigned to it. Residents should get to know their PSA team members and learn how to work with them to fight crime and disorder in their neighborhoods. Each police district has between seven and nine PSAs.

Each Police Service Area holds regular meetings that are open to our residents, business community and stakeholders. We encourage our communities to take advantage of the opportunity to not only engage with MPD during these sessions, but learn how we can all contribute to a safer public safety ecosystem.

Year in Review: 2020

Crime in DC

In 2020, crime trends in the District were mixed. On one hand, violent crime decreased by four percent and property crime was down 20 percent. Additionally, calls for police service declined 14 percent. Adult arrests decreased 34 percent in 2020, and juvenile arrests were down 40 percent.

On the other hand, gun violence in 2020 reached a 12-year high. Of the city's 198 homicides, 172 died from gun violence. In looking at some of the city's most vulnerable populations, it is disturbing that the number of female victims increased from eight in 2019 to 29 in 2020; at least ten of these women were victims of domestic violence. Tragically, eleven children and youths were victims of homicide in 2020. Needless to say, none of us are satisfied with that. As a great city, as a cooperative ecosystem, we all shoulder the responsibility to protect all of our children from deadly violence.

In addition, 750 people were injured from gun violence. The number of illegal guns continued to climb, with 2,314 guns recovered, including more than 300 ghost guns. While removing illegal guns from our neighborhoods is necessary, we know that it is not enough. On the surface, the causes of gun violence include things like petty arguments and insults, retaliation from ongoing disputes, social media disputes that move from the words and images on the web to physical confrontation, violent robberies, and domestic violence.

However, whatever the immediate spark for violence was, the District must continue to address the deeper issues related to gun violence, which include untreated trauma, education inequality, unemployment, unstable housing, social influences that normalize violence, and structural racism.

In the District of Columbia, too many lives were lost to tragedy. In addition to the 198 victims of fatal violence, more than 1,000 DC residents reportedly died from COVID-related complications. Even when people survive these misfortunes, the scars that remain may be felt for a lifetime. In addition to the lives lost and the injuries incurred, countless families, friends, and communities have been impacted. The MPD is focused on identifying ways to work better to prevent and deter this violence.

Policing in a Time of COVID

In March 2020, Mayor Bowser issued a declaration of a public health emergency in the District, just four days after the first known

COVID case in the city. In the following weeks and months, the Metropolitan Police Department worked to protect the safety of its employees and community members while maintaining the continuity of its operations through these unprecedented times. MPD issued more than 60 policy guidelines and updates to direct member operations, and continue providing quality police services with minimal disruptions. In the beginning, in the face of mixed messages from the national stage, we all faced the challenge of trying to determine the right protocols for personal protective equipment. The Department of General Services was a strong partner in improving safety at approximately two dozen MPD facilities. MPD also worked with partner agencies in the criminal justice system to modify all operations to safeguard arrestees and colleagues throughout District and federal agencies, while continuing to conduct necessary law enforcement functions to keep our neighborhoods and residents safe. For instance, to limit contact within the criminal justice system, MPD expanded the use of the Telephone Reporting Unit for members of the public to report minor crimes.

Year in Review: 2020

Recognizing that COVID would have different impacts on some of our communities, our Special Liaison Branch (SLB) immediately targeted outreach to communities with limited English proficiency (LEP). They developed COVID public service announcements in seven languages.

Special Liaison Branch (SLB) officers gave interviews on Spanish language media and worked with the Mayor's Office to distribute translated COVID information to organizations and retail businesses with LEP clientele. When the public health emergency was first declared, three additional Cantonese or Mandarin speaking officers were detailed to SLB for outreach to ensure our Chinese community felt safe reporting any concerns. Fortunately, in 2020, the District did not see the significant jump in hate crimes targeting Chinese or Asian communities that has been seen elsewhere in the country.

Many of the tools identified to limit risk of exposure have also helped streamline processes in ways that had not been previously considered. The MPD plans to continue using many of the tools and processes that arose as a response to the pandemic.

More than 700 MPD employees have tested positive for COVID, and tragically one succumbed to the virus. Each of these losses has been a difficult blow for their families and for our MPD family.

Black Lives Matter

As summer approached and DC began to adjust to a new normal during the health emergency, the murder of George Floyd at the hands of a police officer in Minneapolis forced many in our country – and the law enforcement profession – to face the need for reform in policing. Thousands to tens of thousands of people – District residents and visitors alike – took to the streets of DC in 2020 to demand change. Through dozens of peaceful demonstrations, they broadcast their message. Unfortunately, some people and groups turned a strong but peaceful presence into violent and destructive protests. But that didn't invalidate the importance of the message.

Year in Review: 2020

The Metropolitan Police Department recognizes that structural racism pervades many aspects of our society – housing, education, healthcare, access to financial resources, access to opportunity, and policing. Our members must choose to take a stand against racism. It is up to police to earn the trust of our community members, to be seen as legitimate guardians in their eyes.

Community Outreach

The Metropolitan Police Department Community Outreach Program was designed to help bridge the gap between District residents and MPD. Its mission is to assist the Chief of Police and Command Staff of the District in promoting and cultivating positive relationships in all district communities, using purposeful and sustainable methods. Over the years MPD has continued to enhance outreach with the support of local and federal government agencies, faith based organizations, local businesses, community organizations, and local educational institutions.

Key components that guide MPD's outreach include:

- Community involvement
- Safety education
- Resource connection

1,686

MPD Participated in over 1,686 outreach events in 2020.

146

During the 2020 Summer Crime Prevention Initiative, MPD members hosted over 146 outreach events.

15,000

MPD distributed over 15,000 meals to DC residents in 2020

Outreach efforts allow for ongoing and timely communication with exceptional customer service throughout the police district with residents, Advisory Neighborhood Commissions (ANCs), business owners, commuters, students, etc., to identify concerns, specific interests, and crime prevention needs. Our outreach district teams address concerns and promote the police department internal and external resources and initiatives. We work closely with community leaders to participate in virtual listserv groups, community meetings, safety education, and community projects, as well as participation with in each police districts' Citizen Advisory Council. Our outreach initiatives also include our Summer Crime Prevention Initiative (SCPI) during the summer months and Fall Crime Prevention Initiative (FCPI) during the fall months. During COVID, MPD's efforts included wellness checks to our seniors, students, and more vulnerable populations. MPD district outreach efforts provided virtual story time book readings and youth activities, birthday caravans, and MPD continued to host virtual community meetings. MPD partnered with José Andres World Central Kitchen to provide over 10,000 meals to DC residents. The DC Police Foundation supported MPD's annual Thanksgiving basket deliveries, Shop with a Cop, and Heroes and Helpers during the holiday season, where over 200 kids and youth received holiday gifts. MPD also did coat drives during the winter months and grocery food drive-thrus in all districts during COVID.

Looking Forward

If 2020 taught us nothing else, it is that actions should be guided not by what can be done, but rather by what should be done. The MPD must always be ready and willing to change, to adjust and to learn. During an unprecedented year, members of the MPD did just that. They continued their commitment to law enforcement; supported the community during a pandemic; protected individuals' freedom of expression; and helped make the District of Columbia a safer place.

On January 2 2021, Robert J. Contee, III was sworn in as the new Chief of the Metropolitan Police Department. With his community-based vision for policing and his DC roots, Chief Robert J. Contee, III believes Excellence is Transferrable – everything each member does should be done in the spirit of excellence.

Year in Review: 2020

Under Contee's leadership the Metropolitan Police Department will continue to grow as a model police department. Our members will identify new and better ways to reduce violent crime and we will start new conversations with the community about the role of police in society, what the police should—and should not—be doing, and what other services our community needs to ensure public safety. The MPD continued public safety and relationship building efforts and will surely help this city grow as a Safer, Stronger DC.

DC Code Index Offenses vs. FBI Uniform Crime Reporting Offenses

Like most other jurisdictions, the Metropolitan Police Department (MPD) reports crime two different ways. Primarily, the Department reports crimes that are defined in the District of Columbia Criminal Code (DC Code Index Offenses). This is according to local law and is how officers classify offenses and make arrests. The MPD also generates crime data using uniformly established guidelines that were developed by the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) as the Uniform Crime Reporting System, or UCR.

The MPD relies on the DC Code Index Offense information for daily operational and deployment decisions. Residents access this same information to make informed decisions. The MPD has included DC Code Index Offenses in this Annual Report in order to provide a clear picture of crime trends as they are actually happening in the District of Columbia, and because that is how crime is reported to the MPD by residents. It is also how crime information is shared with the residents of the District of Columbia.

UCR Crime information is also included in Appendix B so that residents have access to that standardized crime data as well. To compare crime trends to other jurisdictions using UCR data, please visit the FBI website at <https://www.fbi.gov/services/cjis/ucr>.

The statistics for this report are based on the various tables from the data warehouse as of the current refresh date. This report should be considered 'Preliminary' in nature. The reports are subject to change due to subsequent determinations related to amendments in classification, unfounded cases, or changes in offense definitions.

* Citywide totals include cases with "unmatched address"; therefore, the sum of all seven districts may be slightly lower than the citywide totals for some offense categories.

Homicide Analysis

Homicide Clearance Rate

	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020
Number of Homicides	135	116	160	166	198
Homicide Rate (per 100,000)	20	17	23	24	29
UCR Clearance Rate	70%	70%	66%	68%	69%

Note: The MPD's homicide clearance rate is calculated, as it is by most police departments in the country, using the Uniform Crime Reporting (UCR) guidelines established by the FBI in the 1930s. These guidelines are the national standard for reporting several categories of crime data, including homicide clearance rates. Nearly 17,000 law enforcement agencies across the United States provide data to the FBI under its UCR program.

Under UCR guidelines, the clearance rate is calculated by dividing the total number of homicide cases closed in a calendar year by the total number of homicides that occurred in that year. The cases closed can be for homicides that occurred in the current year or in the prior years. In other words, some clearances that an agency records in a particular calendar year may pertain to offenses that occurred in previous years. The UCR program measures all of the work that an agency exhausts in closing cases.

A case is "cleared" when, for any given crime, at least one person has been arrested, charged and turned over to the prosecutors, or in exceptional circumstances, such as when the offender died.

Homicide

The total number of homicides increased 19 percent from 2019.

Bias-Related Crimes

Crimes of Hate

A hate crime is a criminal act that demonstrates an accused's prejudice based on the actual or perceived race, color, religion, national origin, sex, age, marital status, personal appearance, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, family responsibility, homelessness, physical disability, matriculation, or political affiliation of a victim of the subject designated act.

Type of Bias

Sexual Orientation accounted for 29 percent of the total offenses in 2020.

Source: MPD Cobalt/Data Warehouse System arrest data as of 1/28/2021

NOTE: 1) Totals are based on top charge (if an individual is arrested on more than one arrest charge, only the most serious charge category is counted). 2) In 2018, MPD updated its arrest category ranking structure. Some arrest charges that have been counted as top charge in prior annual reports may not be classified as top charge in this report. 3) "All Agencies" data includes arrests made by MPD and other law enforcement agencies in the District of Columbia. 4) The term "juvenile" used in the arrest data is defined as individuals under the age of 18 years at the time of arrest, with a juvenile arrest number (i.e. are not charged as an adult). 5) Totals are subject to change due to record sealings, expungements, and data quality audits.

Calls for Service

Answering and dispatching both emergency and non-emergency calls is the responsibility of the Office of Unified Communications (OUC), an independent District agency. Calls dispatched to MPD may be responded to in person or by the agency's Telephone Reporting Unit (TRU). During the COVID-19 public health emergency, MPD has expanded the function of the TRU. For the information below, MPD pulls the Computer Aided Dispatch (CAD) call for service data from a data feed originating from OUC, which manages the CAD system for the District. The calls for service data provided in the data feed include Priority I, II, and III calls as defined below, which account for more than 99% of all MPD calls for service.

Calls for Service

	2019	2020	Change 2019 v 2020
Total Calls for Service*	664,749	573,849	-14%
Response Time for Priority I	5 min 14 sec	5 min 33 sec	19 second slower response time

NOTE: In 2021, the Metropolitan Police Department refined the methodology for pulling calls for service statistics (both the number of calls and response time). The 2019 and 2020 statistics presented in this report reflect this updated methodology.

* "Total Calls for Service" include all Priority I, II and III calls which MPD action is initiated.

**The response time metric reflects the "dispatch to arrival" time of MPD units. Calls received by the Telephone Reporting Unit (TRU) are included in MPD's total calls, but are not included in response time.

Distribution of Citywide Calls for Service to MPD and TRU in 2020

The majority of calls to the MPD and TRU consisted of Priority I, II, and III Calls. Of those 573,849 calls for service in 2020, 61% were Priority II calls.

Definitions of Priority I, II and III Calls

Priority I calls involve circumstances where an imminent threat to the safety of persons or the potential for significant property damage exists resulting in a Code 1 response being authorized. These calls will be dispatched without delay to any available unit within the Police Service Area (PSA) or police district, including to officials and watch commanders if no other unit is available. A sergeant, lieutenant and/or the watch commander will respond to the scene of all Priority I calls.

Priority II calls involve circumstances that require immediate dispatch and response, but most do not involve any imminent threat to the safety of persons or the potential for significant property damage. In the event such a threat is identified in any Priority II call, a Code 1 response can be authorized and it will be handled the same as a Priority I call. The dispatching of an MPD unit to a Priority II call shall not be delayed more than 15 minutes, at which time the dispatcher will advise the watch commander and the call will be assigned to any available unit.

Priority III calls involve routine requests for police services that involve no imminent threat to the safety of persons or the potential for significant property damage. The dispatching of an MPD unit to a Priority III call will not be delayed more than one hour, at which time the dispatcher will advise the watch commander, and a decision will be made on how to handle the call at that time.

Personnel

Total Personnel

The MPD has maintained an average of almost 3,800 sworn members over the past five years.

Ranks of the Metropolitan Police Department

While every sworn member of the Department is a police officer by profession, he or she is further identified by rank. Members at any rank who have been trained to conduct investigations may be known as investigators or detectives.

- Recruit Officer (attending the Metropolitan Police Academy)
- Officer/Master Patrol Officer/Senior Police Officer/Senior Sergeant
- Detective/Detective 1/Senior Detective 1
- Sergeant
- Lieutenant
- Captain
- Inspector
- Commander
- Assistant Chief/Patrol Chief
- Chief of Police

Sworn Personnel, by Rank

Almost 80 percent of MPD's sworn members are officers or detectives. Command Personnel includes Inspectors, Commanders, Assistant Chiefs, and the Chief of Police.

■ Officers/Detectives (3,017)    ■ Recruits (92)
 ■ Sergeants (421)    ■ Lieutenants (122)
 ■ Captains (37)    ■ Command Personnel (22)

Awards of the Metropolitan Police Department

Members are presented with awards throughout the year at regularly scheduled Crime Briefings. In 2020, 458 awards were presented. Of those awards, 435 Metropolitan Police Department members, 11 citizens, and 12 outside law enforcement agency members received the below awards.

- Achievement Medal (297)
- Blue Badge (2)
- Blue Shield (2)
- Chief of Police Special Award (11)
- Lifesaving Medal (54)
- Medal of Merit (12)
- Meritorious Service Medal (4)
- Unit Citation Ribbon (76)

Use of Force

The Metropolitan Police Department remains committed to the highest standards of constitutional, fair, and ethical policing. This Department takes seriously the authority and responsibility to use the force response that is reasonably necessary to bring the situation under control.

Citizen Complaints

The Metropolitan Police Department (MPD) notifies the Office of Police Complaints (OPC) of all complaints it receives, and the OPC determines which agency (MPD or OPC) will investigate the complaint, with the exception of criminal complaints. The MPD investigates all criminal complaints.

Complaints Received by the Office of Police Complaints and the Metropolitan Police Department

In 2020, 764 citizen complaint cases were submitted to the Metropolitan Police Department or the Office of Police Complaints. Some complaints involve more than one allegation and/or more than one officer, so the total number of Allegations of Misconduct and the total number of officers involved will not match the number of case.

CCTV Use in the District of Columbia

The Metropolitan Police Department (MPD) has a Closed Circuit Television (CCTV) system to support public safety operations in the nation's capital. As authorized by District of Columbia Municipal Regulations, the CCTV system may be used to help manage public resources during major public events and demonstrations, to coordinate traffic control on an as needed basis, and to combat crime in District neighborhoods.

The primary goal of the CCTV system is to enhance the safety and security of residents, workers, and visitors in the District of Columbia, while vigorously respecting the privacy rights of individuals. CCTV for homeland security provides law enforcement with real-time, visual information during major events such as demonstrations, presidential inaugurations, and Independence Day. During periods of heightened alert, the system allows police to monitor public spaces around key installations without having to assign a large number of uniformed officers to the task. The CCTV system helps the MPD to deploy resources more efficiently and to respond to incidents more quickly and effectively, while continuing to maintain essential neighborhood patrols.

The MPD continues to utilize the neighborhood-based cameras, which can be deployed according to crime needs and neighborhood concerns, as well as the permanent cameras. In 2020, the MPD deployed 129 new neighborhood cameras. Both the neighborhood-based and permanent cameras have prominent signage and their locations are listed on the Department's website. MPD has 22 mobile CCTV camera trailers, portable CCTV systems that are rapidly deployed for special events and for use in emerging high-crime areas not currently covered by the existing neighborhood based or permanent cameras. These units can also be deployed as a highly visible MPD camera presence in an area.

In 2020, MPD continued supporting the task of providing CCTV video footage from all police district cellblocks in every DUI/DWI arrest case. This has led to a dramatic increase in the number of video requests handled on a daily basis. The requirement to provide this cellblock footage has come from the potential evidence of intoxication that may be contained in the footage. The MPD handled 1,215 requests for DUI/DWI evidence in 2020.

The MPD has various community partnerships involving sharing camera feeds with public and private entities. In October 2014, the MPD and Kastle Systems started a new citywide initiative, Capital Shield. This public/private video partnership between the MPD, Kastle Systems and local businesses allows participants to enroll their current security systems or get recommendations on new video systems. As an owner, the participant has access to video in the new camera systems. The MPD will also have access during critical incidents. Through the partnership with Kastle we are able to currently view 794 devices from private business CCTV systems at 161 locations. Kastle will also continue to donate cameras to local businesses in exchange for participating in the program. The MPD also partners with homeowners and businesses to register their existing cameras and encourages the posting of conspicuous signs that make everyone aware of their presence. The presence of cameras alone can help prevent crime. Both of these programs can supply evidence to detectives that they otherwise would not be aware of simply by residents and businesses in DC signing up and sharing video feeds with the MPD. Participation in both of these programs is entirely voluntary and costs nothing. Neighborhood-based cameras are in all seven police districts; the permanent cameras are placed in public spaces around the National Mall, the US Capitol, the White House, Union Station, and other critical installations, as well as major arteries and highways that pass through the District of Columbia.

While many criminals take note of the cameras' publicized locations and rarely commit crimes in full view of the Department's CCTV, the system has provided assistance in gathering information for investigations by showing the paths and directions that both suspects and witnesses have taken following incidents. Footage from CCTVs is used to confirm or refute a suspect's location at the time of an incident.

FBI UCR Citywide Crime Trends

Like most other jurisdictions, the Metropolitan Police Department (MPD) reports crime two different ways. Primarily, the Department reports crimes that are defined in the District of Columbia Criminal Code. This is according to local law and is how officers classify offenses and makes arrests. The MPD also generates crime data using uniformly established guidelines that were developed by the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) as the Uniform Crime Reporting System, or UCR.

The MPD relies on the DC Code Index Offense information for daily operational and deployment decisions. Residents access this same information to make informed decisions. The MPD has included DC Code Index Offenses in this Annual Report in order to provide an accurate picture of crime trends as they are actually happening in the District of Columbia and because that is how crime is reported to the MPD by residents (see page 15). It is also how crime information is shared with the residents of the District of Columbia.

UCR Crime information has been included here so that residents have access to that standardized crime data. To compare crime trends to other jurisdictions using UCR data, please visit the FBI website.

FBI UCR Part I Crime Definitions

The UCR provides a consistent measure of serious crime that can be compared across time periods or regions.

Murder: The willful non-negligent killing of a person.

Forcible Rape: Penetration, no matter how slight, of the vagina or anus with any body part or object, or oral penetration by a sex organ of another person, without the consent of the victim.

Robbery: The taking or attempting to take anything of value from the care, custody, or control of a person or persons by force or threat of force or violence and/or by putting the victim in fear.

Aggravated Assault: An unlawful attack by one person upon another for the purpose of inflicting severe or aggravated bodily injury. This type of assault is usually accompanied by the use of a weapon or by means likely to produce death or great bodily harm.

Burglary: The unlawful entry of a structure to commit a felony or theft.

Larceny/Theft: The unlawful taking, carrying, leading or riding away of property from the possession or constructive possession of another.

Motor Vehicle Theft: The theft or attempted theft of a motor vehicle. "Motor vehicle" includes automobiles, trucks and buses, and other self-propelled vehicles that run on land surfaces and not rails.

Arson: Any willful or malicious burning or attempt to burn, with or without intent to defraud, a dwelling house, public building, motor vehicle or aircraft, personal property of another, etc.

Bias-Related Crime in the District of Columbia

The Metropolitan Police Department (MPD) is committed to working with the community to address bias-motivated crimes in our city. All individuals – whether they are members of targeted communities or those who might commit a hate crime – should know that intolerance and hate crimes have no place in our vibrant city. While the District strives to reduce crime for all residents of and visitors to the city, hate crimes can make a targeted community feel more vulnerable and fearful. In order to combat hate crimes, everyone must work together not just to address specific allegations of hate crimes but also to consistently send a message that they do not reflect DC values. This report highlights the law in the District, recent trends in hate or bias-related crimes, and efforts in the District to address them.

Bias-Related Crimes Law

Under the Bias-Related Crime Act of 1989 (D.C. Official Code § 22-3700 et. seq.), a bias-related, or hate, crime is a criminal act or attempted criminal act that “demonstrates an accused’s prejudice based on the actual or perceived race, color, religion, national origin, sex, age, marital status, personal appearance, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, family responsibility, homelessness, physical disability, matriculation, or political affiliation of a victim.”

It is important for the community to understand what is – and is not – a hate crime. First and foremost, the incident must be a crime. Although that may seem obvious, most speech is not a hate crime, regardless of how offensive it may be. In addition, a hate crime is not really a specific crime; it is a designation that makes available to the court an enhanced penalty if prosecutors seek a bias crime enhancement. Prosecutors have the challenge of establishing, beyond a reasonable doubt, that a defendant was motivated by prejudice because of an actual or perceived difference.

In short, under the law, there is no specific hate crime but rather a crime demonstrating the bias of the offender. If a person is found guilty of a hate crime, the court may fine the offender up to 1.5 times the maximum fine and imprison him or her for up to 1.5 times the maximum term authorized for the underlying crime.

How Do I Report Hate Crimes?

If you have been the victim of a hate crime, or believe you know of or have witnessed a hate crime, you can report this to MPD in several ways.

- Call 911, for any crime still in progress or that has just happened.
- Call or visit your local MPD district station.
- Call the Hate Crimes Voicemail at (202) 727-0500, which allows individuals in the District to provide information regarding hate crimes anonymously. Please note that MPD may not be able to investigate the report as a crime if there is not enough information, so contact information for any follow up questions are helpful.
- Mail or email a written statement with the complaint that contains information to support a claim that the incident constitutes a bias-related crime. Statements may be sent to:

APPENDIX C

Bias-Related Crime in the District of Columbia

It can be difficult to establish a motive for a crime, and an offender may be motivated by more than one bias. Moreover, there may not be a bright line between two possible types of classifications. For example, an anti-Semitic crime may target Judaism as a religion, Jewishness as an ethnicity, or Israel as a national origin. Therefore, we caution that the classification as a hate crime is subject to change as an investigation proceeds – even as prosecutors continue an investigation. The category under which it is classified may also be subjective.

Addressing Bias-Related Crime

The Metropolitan Police Department is a leader in the area of combating bias-related crimes. The Department works proactively to support consistent reporting and thorough investigations. The Department's strategy to address bias-related crime includes specialized community policing, enhanced officer training, strong data reporting, and robust investigations.

Several MPD units work together to ensure any potential hate crime reported to MPD is identified and investigated. Patrol is often the first unit to identify a hate crime and must note on a police report that there are possible hate crime indicators. Notification is made to the Special Liaison Branch so that they can work with the victim and the community, and to detectives to conduct a thorough investigation into both the criminal elements and the possible motive.

Importantly, it is not up to a patrol officer to conclude whether a crime is motivated by bias but only to note that there may be hate crime indicators. Instead, all potential hate crimes are jointly reviewed by an MPD panel consisting of the Criminal Investigations Division, the Strategic Change Division, the Intelligence Branch, and the Special Liaison Branch (SLB), to ensure that cases are appropriately classified.

The Department recognizes that it can be difficult for victims to come forward or to report that a crime seemed to be motivated by bias, but we want to assure community members that our officers take every incident seriously and that they will be treated with dignity and compassion. If MPD is able to make an arrest, the case is presented to prosecutors, who then make their own determination on whether there is enough evidence to take the case to trial.

Special Liaison Branch

The Department's Special Liaison Branch (SLB) is a model for community policing in its work with historically underserved communities. For more than two decades, the SLB has worked closely with the District's vibrant communities, in particular its African, Asian, Deaf and Hard of Hearing, interfaith, LGBTQ+, and Latino communities. The important work of SLB is carried out by its core members and affiliate officers. The core members are those assigned to the SLB who work on these issues full time. Affiliate officers have volunteered to receive specialized training on diverse communities, their particular issues, and how best to serve them. The affiliates continue to work in their home district but receive coordinated support, information, and trainings through the Liaison Units. They also reinforce the messages of progressive training, policies, and procedures to officers throughout the Department.

A primary role of the Liaison Units is outreach to the represented communities. Although these communities have historically been underserved by law enforcement, this is not the case in the District. The Branch serves as a bridge to these members of our larger community whose diversity contributes to the vibrancy of our city. The core and affiliate officers respond to crime scenes and incidents to support members of our community. MPD victim services specialists work with SLB and crime victims in its communities to support and connect them to non-police services. The SLB also works to support the community with incidents which are not necessarily criminal, such as helping to locate missing persons or with death notifications to family members. The Branch hosts and participates in meetings and presentations and provides the community with public safety materials and information that helps promote a better understanding of interacting with MPD members in criminal and casual contact situations.

MPD works to improve the reporting of bias crimes in the community by providing outreach and educational sessions on the importance of reporting crime. For example, SLB members meet monthly with LGBT community advocates focused on violence prevention, speak regularly on Latino radio, and host presentations to and discussions with students about tolerance and safety. In addition to community-building and education efforts, the SLB serves as a communication conduit between the police and the community every day. Members of SLB sometimes receive notification of potential hate crimes directly from the community.

The SLB also works to support reporting and tracking internally. In 2015, the Department implemented training for all of its members on bias-related crimes, which was delivered by an experienced core or affiliate officer of MPD's LGBT Liaison Unit. SLB members continue to provide training to all new recruits, and reminders are provided to all members at roll calls throughout the year. In 2020, SLB also provided a specialized detective training on hate crimes.

2020 in Review In the Community

The strong relationships the SLB has built through consistent presence and partnership in the community was a valuable asset in 2020 as together, the city and the nation grappled with the COVID-19 pandemic. For instance, when the public health emergency was first declared, three additional Cantonese or Mandarin speaking officers were detailed to SLB for outreach to ensure our Chinese community felt safe reporting any concerns. SLB officers also worked with the Mayor's Office to distribute COVID-19 information to business owners with limited English proficiency. Spanish-speaking SLB officers supported pop-up COVID testing sites in the heavily impacted Columbia Heights and helped to broadcast important health messages on Spanish language media.

SLB and other officers throughout the Department helped to assemble food supplies and deliver them to members of the community in need. To help community members stay connected, they organized birthday parades, coordinated socially distant outdoor fitness activities, and recorded officers reading stories for young children. During these uncertain times, it is reassuring to be reminded of the strong spirit of support and resilience in our communities. When our community members need it most, MPD's dedicated and talented team was a vital part of the strong network supporting our city.

Throughout the pandemic, the Department, particularly SLB and the Asian Liaison Unit (ALU), has been especially mindful of the risk of hate crimes targeting members of the Asian community. Many cities reported alarming increases, adding up to a 70 percent increase nationally in hate crimes against the Asian community. In the District, there were three reported hate crimes (one threats case and two simple assaults) that targeted individuals of Asian descent, compared to six in 2019. The incidents in 2020 all took place in Asian-owned or managed commercial businesses.

New Law

In 2020, the Council of the District of Columbia enacted legislation first proposed by Mayor Muriel Bowser and MPD in 2018. The legislation, the Community Harassment Prevention Emergency Amendment Act of 2020, expands the types of property on which it is unlawful to burn or desecrate religious or secular symbols, or to display certain emblems such as nooses, Nazi swastikas, or burning crosses. A spate of hate crimes in 2017 led to the development in 2018 of the proposal to amend the District statute on burning or desecrating religious or secular symbols, or displaying certain emblems such as nooses, Nazi swastikas, or burning crosses. The prior offense applied where a reasonable person would perceive the intent is to:

- Deprive someone of equal protection of the law;
- Intimidate or cause fear in a person; or
- Threaten to harm a person or damage property.

In 2017, a series of nooses and Nazi swastikas were displayed at various locations in the city. Fifteen nooses were found at museums, monuments, universities, construction sites, and other locations. Swastikas were also displayed in a dozen cases. The prior statute prohibited activities such as burning or desecrating religious or secular symbols, or displaying certain items, such as a noose, Nazi swastika, or burning cross, on private premises or property in the District primarily used for religious, educational, residential, memorial, charitable, or cemetery purposes, with the above referenced intent.

Most often the swastika cases involved graffiti, so there was a clear crime of damaging or destroying property. The nooses, however, did not involve damage to, or destruction of, property, so it was not clear that the District could hold someone accountable for hanging nooses at construction sites, or on utility wires or trees. Other examples of uncovered property might include movie theaters or sports arenas, which may be privately owned but are also open to the public. The new law closed this gap by prohibiting these activities or displays on any private property of another without the permission of the owner or the owner's designee, or on any public property in the District of Columbia. In addition, the law now includes the intent to threaten not only another person, but also their property. A burning cross may only demonstrate a threat to property, but it would be alarming nonetheless. The enacted legislation will help to protect our communities from hate and hold accountable individuals who try to harass and intimidate them.

Bias-Related Crimes Data

Despite the work of MPD and many others in the District, some of the communities in the city face a greater impact from the escalating negative discourse and intolerance around the country that has given rise to more bias-motivated crimes. Nation-wide we see hate crimes targeting individuals for where they were born, what language they speak in public, who they love, what race or ethnicity they identify with, and what religion they follow. Places that we all thought were safe spaces – schools, churches, synagogues, government buildings – have all been targets of violent hate. While the Internet has transformed our daily lives, it has also made it very easy to find receptive audiences for sharing hatred, bigotry, and extremism.

Based on crimes reported to MPD, hate crimes in the District decreased in 2020. Comparing 2020 to 2019, reported hate crimes decreased 35 percent (71 crimes). This decrease was likely primarily due to a decrease in public interactions during the COVID-19 public health emergency and stay-home orders. The only bias type which had an increase was political affiliation (+5 crimes).

Data on hate crimes are also available on the MPD webpage (www.mpd.cdc.gov/hatecrimes). Summary data is posted monthly. In 2018, MPD began posting more detailed hate crime been on the rise. The Department is committed to working with our partners in the community and government to combat hate crimes, and ensure the District remains an inclusive, vibrant city.

Littering Enforcement in DC

Littering Enforcement in the District of Columbia

In December 2008, the Council of the District of Columbia passed the Anti-Littering Amendment Act of 2008. The legislation provided new tools to support the enforcement of littering. Police officers, with round-the-clock presence on the streets of the District, can be an important part of the routine enforcement necessary to keep our city clean by deterring people from littering. In addition, in January 2011 the final legislative change that was needed to begin littering enforcement became effective.

General Littering

The Anti-Littering Amendment Act of 2008 amended the existing littering statute to establish an affirmative requirement that a person stopped for a non-traffic littering violation provide the officer with his or her accurate name and address for the citation. Without accurate identifying information, the government's ability to hold violators accountable for this civil offense is limited. Violators who do not provide a valid name and address to an officer citing them for a civil non-traffic littering violation can be arrested. The criminal offense of refusing to provide an accurate name and address is adjudicated by the Superior Court of the District of Columbia, with a penalty, upon conviction, of not less than $100 or more than $250. The underlying littering violation is adjudicated by Office of Administrative Hearings. The fine for this littering violation is $75.

In order to issue a ticket, an officer must personally observe the litterer intentionally or carelessly dropping rubbish, waste matter, refuse, garbage, trash, debris, dead animals or other discarded materials of every kind and description, on public space, in waterways, or on private property not under his or her control. The number of non-traffic littering tickets issued and dismissed in calendar year 2020 is provided below.

Littering from a Vehicle

The Act also established a new violation for littering from a vehicle. It provides that "No person shall dispose or cause or allow the disposal of litter from a vehicle upon any public or private property. Litter shall include all rubbish, waste matter, refuse, garbage, trash, debris, dead animals, or other discarded materials of every kind and description." (DC Municipal Regulations § 18-2221.6). The penalty for the offense is a $100 fine, with any appeals adjudicated by the Department of Motor Vehicles. Since this violation is enforced and adjudicated similar to other civil traffic violations, it could be and was immediately implemented citywide. The number of tickets issued and dismissed in calendar year 2020 is provided below.

Citizen Complaints

The Metropolitan Police Department (MPD) is committed to providing professional, high-quality services to all; MPD does not tolerate misconduct or wrongdoing on the part of its members. If you believe you have been subjected to, or witnessed, police misconduct of any type, MPD encourages you to report the incident to either MPD or the Office of Police Complaints (OPC). There are many convenient ways for you to file complaints, including in-person, over the telephone, or via mail, email or fax.

What is the Process Once a Complaint is Made?

A complaint may be submitted to either the Metropolitan Police Department (MPD) or the Office of Police Complaints (OPC). The MPD notifies the OPC of all complaints it receives, and the OPC determines which agency (MPD or OPC) will investigate the complaint, with the exception of criminal complaints. The MPD investigates all criminal complaints.

1. When MPD receives a completed complaint, it is transmitted to OPC for evaluation and determination of investigative authority.
2. If a complaint is referred to MPD by OPC, the MPD official responsible for investigating the complaint contacts you to let you know he or she is investigating the allegation. If necessary, the official will obtain additional information.
3. The complaint is investigated: any available evidence is reviewed, and witnesses and officers (against whom the complaint is filed) are interviewed. The officers are entitled to know the complainant's name, if known, and the nature of the complaint. However, MPD will not reveal the complainant's name if the complainant requests to remain anonymous.
4. Investigation is completed and one of the following conclusions is made:
  - Sustained – where the person's allegation is supported by sufficient evidence to determine that the incident occurred and the actions of the officer were improper.
  - Insufficient Facts – where there are insufficient facts to decide whether the alleged misconduct occurred.
  - Exonerated – where a preponderance of the evidence shows that the alleged conduct did occur but did not violate MPD policies, procedures, or training.
  - Unfounded – where the investigation determined no facts to support that the incident complained of actually occurred.
5. You are notified of the outcome of the investigation. If you do not agree with the outcome, you may appeal the decision in writing by sending a letter to the Chief of Police at:
