

METROPOLITAN POLICE DEPARTMENT ANNUAL REPORT 2007

Cathy L. Lanier
Chief of Police

Adrian M. Fenty
Mayor

Mission of the Metropolitan Police Department

It is the mission of the Metropolitan Police Department to safeguard the District of Columbia and protect its residents and visitors by providing the highest quality of police service with integrity, compassion, and a commitment to innovation that integrates people, technology and progressive business systems.

Guiding Principles of Chief of Police Cathy L. Lanier

- ☛ Reduce crime and the fear of crime in the community.
- ☛ Change the culture of the MPD from reacting to crime to building and sustaining safe neighborhoods.
- ☛ Position the MPD to be viewed and respected nationally and internationally as a model for how it serves the community.
- ☛ Build homeland security into the culture of the MPD and the community without creating fear.
- ☛ Make the relationship between police and neighborhoods paramount — tailoring policing to neighborhoods.
- ☛ Build on what the MPD is doing right.
- ☛ Focus on MPD's routine activities, fostering innovation and initiative, all while maintaining fiscal accountability.
- ☛ Encourage teamwork and leadership at every level of the police department and throughout the community.
- ☛ Emphasize that every MPD employee has the power to influence positive change — and encourage them to improve the service they provide to both the Department and community.
- ☛ Throughout the department, focus on how the MPD can address youth issues.
- ☛ Enhance follow-up in all aspects of the department to meet community needs.

Message from the Mayor

When I appointed Cathy Lanier to serve as Chief of Police under my administration, I knew I was choosing a person with a history of serving the residents of the District of Columbia, who would bring a unique understanding of both the importance of community policing and an expertise in homeland security that the top law enforcement officer of the nation's capital must possess.

During her first year in office, Chief Lanier has made great strides in improving public safety by working to increase police patrols and improving resident interaction with their neighborhood officers. Clearly, under her supervision, MPD is making an impact. Together we have created a holistic approach to community policing that meets the needs of our most endangered residents by expanding customized community policing to stop crime before it happens.

Throughout my tenure as mayor, I have had the opportunity to hear the Chief recount the heroic actions of the dedicated members of the Metropolitan Police Department as well as some citizens who cared enough to get involved. I am proud of these accomplishments—both those recognized with medals and those that go unnoticed—and I am confident that the Department will continue to set the benchmark for police departments across the country.

Message from the Chief

Community policing and improved technologies have been the cornerstones of my tenure as Chief of Police of the Metropolitan Police Department. In 2007, the Metropolitan Police Department made great strides in both areas.

We now have more officers on patrol who are engaged with members of our diverse communities. And to stay connected to the communities we serve, members of the Department have the technology available to them that allows them to spend less time filling out paperwork, and more time patrolling our streets. Through programs such as Summer of Safety, Operation Free and Operation Full Stride, and the All Hands on Deck initiative, MPD has provided residents and business-owners with numerous opportunities to get to know the patrol officers assigned to their beat. These efforts coupled with DC's targeted neighborhood improvement effort aimed at reducing criminal activity and increasing quality of life in at-risk communities, have also contributed to increased patrols and improved delivery of human services in our targeted Focused Improvement Areas.

Our efforts are paying off. We removed more guns, drugs and other weapons from the streets of DC. And in 2007 we had the highest homicide case closure rate in 10 years, a rate that far exceeded national benchmarks.

Of course, we could not do it without the help of the community. We've changed the way we interact with residents by having more officers patrol on foot, on bike and on Segways. The community is getting to know their patrol officers and is more willing to share information.

I am proud of the fine men and women of the Metropolitan Police Department. Together we are ushering in a new generation of officers and we are policing our neighborhoods and communities with greater efficiency and compassion for the people we serve.

Cathy R. Lanier

2007: The Year in Review

Under Chief Lanier's direction, MPD introduced several initiatives and programs to improve public safety. Following are some of the highlights from these successful and innovative new measures.

MPD's First Woman Chief

Cathy L. Lanier was named Chief of the Metropolitan Police Department by DC Mayor Adrian Fenty. She officially assumed the leadership position on January 2, 2007. On April 3, 2007, members of the DC Council unanimously approved her confirmation.

Shortly after her confirmation, Chief Lanier unveiled a new mission statement and guiding principles to help direct the changes she planned for her first year.

Homicide Closure Rate

At the close of 2007, the city had 181 homicides. Although homicides in 2007 were slightly higher than the previous year, the closure rate remains strong, at 70.2 percent, significantly higher than the average of comparably-sized cities, which was 54.6 percent in 2007. The homicide closure rate is the highest it has been in 10 years. This is also the fifth straight year that the homicide clearance rate has been more than 60 percent.

Chief Lanier attributes this achievement to the community-based homicide investigations of the hard working and dedicated detectives and officials in the Violent Crime Branch, and to the cooperation and support of the community members we serve.

Summer of Safety 2007

For summer 2007, the MPD kicked off its first Summer of Safety Program (SOS), a program designed to ensure that kids and parents had options for safe and fun activities to keep the kids occupied. These activities would help ensure that the young people were less likely to become victims of crime or involved in delinquent behavior. The program began in June with block parties and other structured activities around the city where kids and their parents could find out about supervised events that were offered at little to no cost to District youth.

Many of the events were coordinated by MPD school resource officers. In addition to that, each of our police districts hosted a summer camp. For youth who were old enough to work, MPD partnered with the Department of Employment Services to offer jobs with MPD.

The Washington DC Police Foundation provided a very generous grant of $172,500, which provided funding for the MPD to operate eight summer day camps and offer them to low-income residents whose children may not have otherwise received supervised care during the summer months. The camps filled up quickly due to the advertisement in the DC Summer Fun Guide. We were able to provide service to 692 young people. Approximately eighty officers were involved in operating the summer camps, many of whom worked in middle, junior and high schools during the school year and had experience with children. The camp activities focused on fun and educational field trips, sports and motivational programs featuring guest speakers.

Over 400 events were offered to the city's youth as a result of the funds received, including movie nights at the police stations, community block parties, storybook hours, skate fun with DC's Skate Mobile and the largest back-to-school event the MPD has ever held.

During the Summer of Safety 2007, there were 83 fewer juvenile arrests from June 14-August 26, when compared to the same time last year. Of that, Felony arrests were down 11 percent. We consider this to be a major accomplishment during the Summer of Safety.

Police Cadet Program

The MPD's Police Cadet Program develops and fosters the values required in community-based, customer-oriented policing for prevention. The program also helps cadets develop the analytical thinking skills required to meet the challenges of their complex roles as problem-solvers, service providers, and professionals in the criminal justice system of the 21st century.

Operating through a cooperative education and employment program, the Department seeks to inspire concerned DC youths to play a more positive role in improving their neighborhoods. The underlying focus of the training is on self-discipline and instilling core values of service to the community.

The Cadet Program provides an opportunity for some of the District of Columbia's youths to meet the MPD's entrance requirements of two years of college to join the Metropolitan Police Department. Cadets earn an associate degree at the University of the District of Columbia while they participate in the program. Thus, the program works to ensure that prospective members of the Metropolitan Police Department will be drawn from the communities it serves.

In 2007, the MPD increased the number of cadets from three to 30 young people – mainly from the 6th and 7th Police Districts. While pursuing their studies, the Cadets participated in various community-based activities designed to enhance social skills between the cadets and citizens. They served lunches to senior citizens at a wellness center in Southeast, participated in the turkey give-away with Mayor Adrian Fenty, and helped with the distribution of toys at several Toys for Tots events.

District Takes Fifth Place for its 2007 National Night Out Celebration

The Metropolitan Police Department placed fifth nationally for the city's participation in the 24th Annual National Night Out on August 7, 2007.

The festivities and events held in honor of the 24th Annual National Night Out garnered the attention of the event's national organizers, the National Association of Town Watch. The kickoff event and dozens of other activities planned throughout the city that evening qualified the city's participation for fifth place among cities with populations of 300,000 or more.

Hundreds of residents and officers turned out for activities that took place all over the District.

Project Pride Restoration Initiated to Raise Awareness About MPD's History

In August 2007, Chief Cathy L. Lanier initiated "Project Pride Restoration," in an effort to enhance awareness about the MPD's tremendous history and to encourage its members to reconnect with their past. As part of this effort, police facilities have been adorned with historic and contemporary photographs that help tell MPD's story and demonstrate its unique role in history.

These photographs in the District stations and sub-stations were selected because they help illustrate MPD's long history in Washington, DC. The photographs selected for the different locations reflect the history of that police district and its area.

The Maurice T. Turner, Jr. Metropolitan Police Academy Annex has amazing photographs on display in the classroom hallway and in the main Academy building. The photographs cover a wide range of topics and eras, but each one tells the viewer something about the Metropolitan Police Department's history and its future.

The MPD Police Museum officially opened on September 11, 2007. It is located at Police Headquarters, in the Henry J. Daly Building, 300 Indiana Avenue, NW, 6th Floor.

PSAs Realigned to Better Manage Resources

The Metropolitan Police Department transferred a portion of the Third Police District to the Second District on September 2, 2007. Police Service Area (PSA) 306 was renamed PSA 208 and transferred administratively to the Second Police District in order to address emerging crime patterns and unequal workload between the two districts. The physical boundaries of the police service area remained the same, but the organizational change has enabled better coordination of service, communication, and management of resources.

The change helped to resolve a workload imbalance between the Second District, which handled just 4.5 percent of "Priority 1" (emergency) calls, and the Third District, which previously accounted for over 21 percent of these calls. As the number of crimes increased in the Third District, the amount of radio traffic also increased exponentially, reducing the effectiveness of police communications. Additionally, the strain on structural resources such as the use of district lockup facilities, report-writing rooms, and other elements of the police stations was similarly imbalanced in the previous structure.

The move transferred a total of 78 personnel — including officers, sergeants, and lieutenants currently assigned to PSA 306 — to the Second District. In the year since the realignment, response time to Priority I calls for service decreased 4 percent in the Second District and 11 percent in the Third District.

Operation FREE/Full Stride

In an effort to increase our community-police interaction, crime prevention, and visibility in all of the city's neighborhoods, the Metropolitan Police Department introduced two programs to help re-connect members with the citizens they serve on a daily basis. In August 2007, the Metropolitan Police Academy launched, "Operation FREE" (Focused Redeployment Enhancement Effort) to give recruits nearing graduation the opportunity to meet members of the communities they will soon serve, increase visibility in the neighborhoods, and provide face-to-face interactions.

Following on the success of Operation FREE, Chief Lanier re-invigorated an age-old tactic, the foot beat, in October 2007. Operation Full Stride added foot patrols to all seven police districts to increase foot patrols across the city. Operation Full Stride helps citizens get to know the foot beat officers and the leadership team — the sergeants and lieutenants — in their police service area so they can call on them in a time of need or when they have a question. Full Stride will also help MPD increase citizen participation by assisting MPD officers in preventing and solving crimes in the Nation's Capital.

Special Liaison Units

In October 2007, as part of her departmental reorganization and her long-term commitment to the expansion of the services provided, Chief Lanier centralized command of the Special Liaison Units under the Executive Office of the Chief of Police.

The Special Liaison Unit is comprised of the Department's current liaison units, Gay and Lesbian Liaison Unit (GLLU), Latino Liaison Unit (LLU), Asian Liaison Unit (ALU) and the Deaf and Hard of Hearing Unit (DHHU). All four units fall under the supervision of Sergeant Brett Parson, who works out of the Executive Office of the Chief of Police.

The units' day-to-day operations are still supervised by their current patrol leaders. The units will also continue to deploy from their current locations throughout the city and maintain their citywide functions and missions.

MPD Launches New Smart Patrol Technology

In November 2007, Mayor Adrian M. Fenty and Chief Cathy L. Lanier announced the deployment of the Smart Patrol car. The new wireless technology will make MPD patrol officers more efficient and effective.

The new technology allows officers to perform local and national criminal record checks, receive dispatch calls and submit police reports — all with just a tap of an index finger on a touch screen computer. Locators are installed on each of the laptops, allowing dispatchers to locate officers anywhere in the city. The technology also gives officers the ability to receive and respond to calls for service without the use of a radio.

Initially, 50 cars were outfitted with the new laptops. Approximately 200 patrol cruisers will be retrofitted per quarter with the new technology, ultimately installing the laptops in all 800 patrol cars.

Improvements in Fleet Management Provides Enhanced Visibility in DC

In an effort to develop a long-term MPD fleet plan focused on enhanced efficiency and controlled cost of fleet maintenance, the MPD realigned the fleet in FY2007. The Fleet Realignment Strategy increased the number of marked cruisers and decreased the number of unmarked cruisers. By the close of FY2007, the MPD had 35 more marked cruisers and 22 fewer unmarked cruisers than in FY2006. Additionally,

Chief Lanier revised the take-home vehicle program to prioritize the assignment of take-home vehicles to officers living in the District of Columbia and working in patrol, thus rewarding the members' commitment to community policing, encouraging them to live in the city, and increasing MPD's visibility.

Mayor Fenty Targets Crime through Focused Neighborhood Improvement Effort

In November, Mayor Adrian M. Fenty launched a targeted pilot initiative aimed at reducing criminal activity and increasing quality of life in at-risk communities. The effort, involving several District agencies in cooperation with non-governmental community-based organizations, first targeted three Focused Improvement Areas (FIA) in the city's Third, Fifth and Seventh Police Districts.

The program focuses on combining existing community policing efforts such as Operation Full Stride and the delivery of human services. Objectives include increasing employment opportunities, engaging youth in meaningful activities, increasing school attendance and improving neighborhood appearance.

In addition to the MPD, lead District agencies for FIAs include the Department of Employment Services, Department of Human Services, Department of Parks and Recreation, DC Public Schools, Office of the State Superintendent of Education, and Department of Consumer and Regulatory Affairs.

Mayor Fenty Works with Council to Add Resources for Community Policing

Also in November, Mayor Adrian M. Fenty, joined by Ward 1 Councilmember Jim Graham and Chief Cathy L. Lanier, announced additional resources aimed at reducing criminal activity, specifically related to gang activity in the three targeted Focused Improvement Areas. Additional resources for community policing were allocated to the Third District following several shootings in Ward 1 — many of them related to crew activity.

Specifically, community policing efforts were enhanced through the following initiatives:

- ★ Expanded Shot Spotter technology
Funds have been dedicated to expand Shot Spotter gunshot location technology to various locations around the city rolling out in the Third and Fourth Districts. Shot Spotter detects gunfire across large urban areas using a small number of inexpensive and easy-to-deploy sensors.

- ★ Financial resources for gang intervention activities
$1.2 million in grants to the Metropolitan Police Department for expanded community partnerships to address gang intervention and mediation beginning in the Third District.
- ★ Gang Intelligence Partnership expansion
An expanded focus in the Focused Improvement Areas, beginning in the Third District.

All Hands on Deck

During All Hands on Deck (AHOD), all available sworn MPD personnel were on patrol throughout the District emphasizing community policing, focused law enforcement and community outreach. The AHOD initiative is part of the Metropolitan Police Department's larger effort to improve public safety by encouraging greater communication with residents. More officers on patrol during AHOD allowed for more proactive policing.

All Hands on Deck was conducted in five phases. The first four phases of AHOD were conducted in June, July, August and November. Phase V of AHOD began on Friday, December 7, 2007 and continued through Sunday, December 9, 2007. The AHODs netted more than 2,400 arrests.

MPD Gun Amnesty Program

Chief Cathy L. Lanier announced that over 600 guns were recovered as a result of a Gun Amnesty Program that was conducted on two Saturdays in December. The collections were held December 15 and December 29 at various locations in the Third, Sixth, and Seventh police districts. The Gun Amnesty Program, which is a part of the Metropolitan Police Department's commitment to reducing gun violence in the District, offered an opportunity for people to turn in their weapons to authorities without fear of prosecution.

The total numbers, broken down by participating locations, were as follows:

- ★ 367 guns turned in (3rd District location)
- ★ 161 guns turned in (4th District location)
- ★ 100 guns turned in (7th District location)

The total amount paid for turn-ins under this program was $33,100.

Gun Recovery Unit

In November, Chief Lanier re-established the Gun Recovery Unit (GRU), a citywide unit designed to seize firearms. The GRU is staffed with officers who have enhanced training on identifying and recovering illegal guns and who work closely with other jurisdictions. GRU has also had success with Gun Trafficking cases in the District and in Prince George's County. As of December 27, 2007, GRU:

- ★ has made 121 arrests; 48 of those were for firearm related offenses.
- ★ has obtained and executed 32 search warrants.
- ★ recovered 67 firearms (61 handguns, 3 assault rifles, 1 rifle, 2 shotguns).
- ★ recovered 11 replica firearms, pellet guns, BB guns.

The Gun Recovery Unit has also made the following seizures:

- ★ Nine vehicles
- ★ $60,853 in US currency

Customized Community Policing and Police Patrols

To support customized community policing in the MPD, the District of Columbia is divided into seven police districts. Each district is further divided into 5-8 Police Service Areas (PSAs), for a total of 46 PSAs citywide. The PSA is the basic building block of customized community policing in DC. More than two-thirds of all officers are assigned to patrols.

Organization of the Metropolitan Police Department

On September 24, 2007, Chief Cathy L. Lanier announced a major restructuring of the Metropolitan Police Department. The reorganization was designed to streamline the Department to better serve the District.

During her first nine months as Chief of Police, she carefully reviewed the way the Department operates, always with an eye toward improving our efficiency and the way the MPD protects residents. The changes reduced the hierarchy of the Department and put in place a team of Assistant Chiefs with extensive policing experience.

The reorganization eliminated the Regional Operation Commands and Operational Support Command. The restructuring also reduced the number of Assistant Chiefs from eight to six, and eliminated two Senior Executive Director positions that were the equivalent of Assistant Chiefs. These changes created a less top-heavy command structure, and helped improve the level of police service to residents.

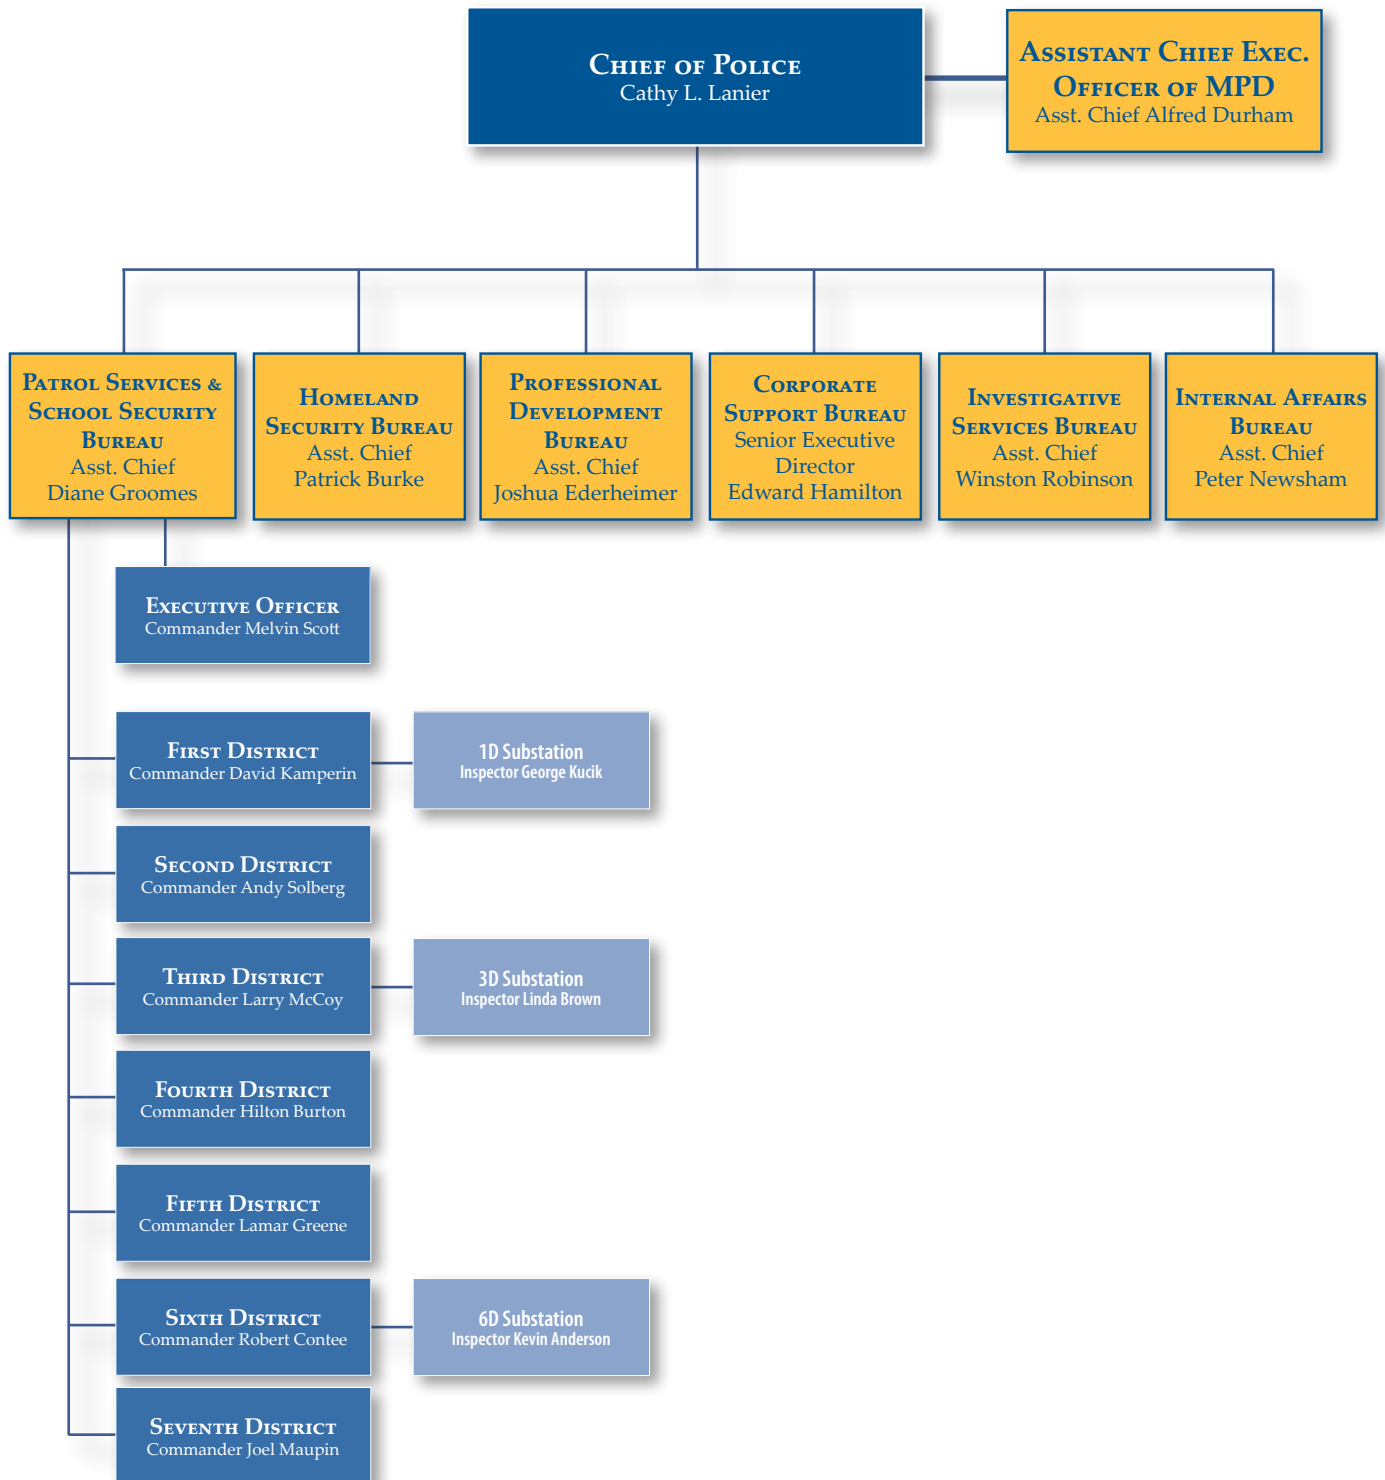

The new organizational structure consisted of the Executive Office of the Chief of Police and included six bureaus:

- ★ Assistant Chief, Executive Officer — Assistant Chief Alfred Durham
- ★ Patrol Services and School Security Bureau — Assistant Chief Diane Groomes
- ★ Homeland Security Bureau — Assistant Chief Patrick Burke
- ★ Professional Development Bureau — Assistant Chief Joshua Ederheimer
- ★ Corporate Support Bureau — Mr. Edward Hamilton
- ★ Investigative Services Bureau — Assistant Chief Winston Robinson
- ★ Internal Affairs Bureau — Assistant Chief Peter Newsham

“I am excited about the direction of this Department and look forward to making MPD the model police department in the country.”

DC Code Index Offenses vs. FBI Uniform Crime Reporting Offenses

Like most other jurisdictions, the Metropolitan Police Department (MPD) reports crime two different ways. Primarily, the Department reports crimes that are defined in the District of Columbia Criminal Code (DC Code Index Offenses). This is according to local law and is how officers classify offenses and make arrests. The MPD also generates crime data using uniformly established guidelines that were developed by the Federal Bureau of Investigation as the Uniform Crime Reporting System, or UCR.

The MPD relies on the DC Code Index Offense information for daily operational and deployment decisions. Residents access this same information to make informed decisions. The MPD has included DC Code Index Offenses in this Annual Report in order to provide a clear picture of crime trends as they are actually happening in the District of Columbia, and because that is how crime is reported to the MPD by residents. It is also how crime information is shared with the residents of the District of Columbia.

UCR Crime information is also included in this report in Appendix B so that residents have access to that standardized crime data as well. To compare crime trends to other jurisdictions using UCR data, please visit the FBI website www.fbi.gov/ucr/ucr.htm.

Citywide Crime Trends

Crime, based on DC Code

Overall crime has increased slightly from 2006 to 2007, but it remains 14 percent lower than in 2003.

| DC Code Index Offense Definitions | FBI UCR Part I Crime Definitions |
|---|---|
| The MPD relies on the DC Code Index Offenses for daily operational and deployment decisions. Offenders who are arrested in the District of Columbia are prosecuted for the offenses represented in the DC Code. | The UCR provides a consistent measure of serious crime that can be compared across police agencies. |
| Homicide: Killing of another purposely, in perpetrating or attempting to perpetrate an offense punishable by imprisonment, or otherwise with malice aforethought. | Murder: The willful non-negligent killing of a person. |
| Sex Assault: One of many sexual acts against another, either forcibly or without his/her permission, and/or against a child or someone who is otherwise incapable of communicating unwillingness. The severity ranges from forcible rape to other forms of sexual contact. | Forcible Rape: The carnal knowledge of a female forcibly and against her will. |
| Robbery: The taking from another person, or immediate actual possession of another, anything of value, by force or violence, whether against resistance or by sudden or stealthy seizure or snatching, or by putting in fear. This category includes carjackings. | Robbery: The taking or attempting to take anything of value from the care, custody, or control of a person or persons by force or threat of force or violence and/or by putting the victim in fear. |
| Assault Dangerous Weapon (ADW): Knowingly or purposely causing serious bodily injury to another person, or threatening to do so; or under circumstances manifesting extreme indifference to human life, knowingly engaging in conduct that creates a grave risk of serious bodily injury to another person, and thereby causes serious bodily injury. Weapons include, but are not limited to, firearms, knives and other objects. | Aggravated Assault: An unlawful attack by one person upon another for the purpose of inflicting severe or aggravated bodily injury. This type of assault is usually accompanied by the use of a weapon or by means likely to produce death or great bodily harm. |
| Burglary: Breaking and entering, or entering without breaking, any dwelling, bank, store, warehouse, shop, stable, or other building or any apartment or room, whether at the time occupied or not, or any steamboat, canal boat, vessel, other watercraft, railroad car, or any yard where any lumber, coal, or other goods or chattels are deposited and kept for the purpose of trade, with intent to break and carry away any part thereof or any fixture or other thing attached to or connected with the same. | Burglary: The unlawful entry of a structure to commit a felony or theft. |
| Theft/Other: This includes conduct previously known as larceny, larceny by trick, larceny by trust, embezzlement, theft of services and false pretenses. The Theft/Other category excludes theft of items from a motor vehicle or the motor vehicle itself, which are captured under other categories. | Larceny/Theft: The unlawful taking, carrying, leading or riding away of property from the possession or constructive possession of another. |
| Theft F/Auto: Theft of items from within a vehicle, excluding motor vehicle parts and accessories. | |
| Stolen Auto: Theft of a motor vehicle (any automobile, self-propelled mobile home, motorcycle, truck, truck tractor, truck tractor with semi trailer or trailer, or bus). | Motor Vehicle Theft: The theft or attempted theft of a motor vehicle. "Motor vehicle" includes automobiles, trucks and buses, and other self-propelled vehicles that run on land surfaces and not rails. |

DC Code Index Crime Rates (per 100,000)

The District's per-capita Index crime rate in 2007 was 18 percent less than what it was just four years earlier.

Violent Crimes (based on DC Code)

Homicide

For the first time since the mid-1980s, DC has recorded fewer than 200 homicides per year for the past four years.

Sexual Assault

The number of sexual assaults in 2007 has decreased 42 percent since 2003.

Robbery

The number of robberies citywide has increased slightly in recent years.

Assault with a Dangerous Weapon

Assaults with a Dangerous Weapon have declined 13 percent since 2003.

Homicide Analysis

Homicides by Month: 2003–2007

June and July have been the deadliest months for homicide in DC.

Homicide Rate

DC's homicide rate has remained below 40 per 100,000 residents since 2004.

| | 2003 | 2004 | 2005 | 2006 | 2007 |
|------------------|------|------|------|------|------|
| Total Homicides | 248 | 198 | 196 | 169 | 181 |
| Rate per 100,000 | 44 | 36 | 34 | 29 | 31 |

Clearance Rate

The homicide clearance rate has exceeded 60 percent each of the last five years, exceeding 70 percent in 2007. It continues to remain higher than the national average for comparably-sized cities.

| | 2003 | 2004 | 2005 | 2006 | 2007 |
|---------------------|-------|-------|-------|-------|-------|
| Number of Homicides | 248 | 198 | 196 | 169 | 181 |
| UCR Clearance Rate | 60.5% | 60.6% | 60.7% | 64.5% | 70.2% |

Note: The clearance rate is calculated by dividing the total number of homicide cases closed in a calendar year by the total number of homicides that occurred in that year. The cases closed can be for homicides that occurred in the current year or in prior years.

Victim Profile

The overwhelming majority of homicide victims continue to be black males; black females represent the second largest group.

Calls for Service

Answering and dispatching both emergency and non-emergency calls are now the responsibility of the Office of Unified Communications, a District agency created in October 2004.

Calls for Service Trends

The total number of emergency calls for service in 2007 remained statistically unchanged compared to 2006.

| | 2006 | 2007 |
|--|----------------|----------------|
| Calls Recieved, Dispatched | 623,726 | 620,565 |
| Calls Recieved, Not Dispatched | 30,433 | 33,303 |

| Distribution of Calls (Not Dispatched) | 4.7% | 5.1% |
| Total 911 Calls for Service | 654,159 | 653,868 |

A "call for service" is any call for which MPD action is initiated.

Priority I, II and III Calls for Service

While the number of priority calls for service increased between 2006 and 2007, the overall response time decreased.

| Type of Call | 2006 | | 2007 | | Percent Change | |
|--------------|------------|--------------------|------------|--------------------|----------------|--------------------|
| | Call Count | Avg. Response Time | Call Count | Avg. Response Time | Call Count | Avg. Response Time |

| Priority III | 150,430 | 18.41 min | 150,993 | 17.74 min | 0.4% | -3.6% |

Definitions of Priority I, II and III Calls

Priority I calls involve circumstances where an imminent threat to the safety of persons or the potential for significant property damage exists resulting in a Code 1 response being authorized. These calls will be dispatched without delay to any available unit within the PSA or police district, including to officials and watch commanders if no other unit is available. A sergeant, lieutenant and/or the watch commander will respond to the scene of all Priority I calls.

Priority II calls involve circumstances that require immediate dispatch and response but most do not involve any imminent threat to the safety of persons or the potential for significant property damage. In the event such a threat is identified in any Priority II call, a Code 1 response can be authorized and it will be handled the same as a Priority I call. The dispatching of an MPD unit to a Priority II call shall not be delayed more than 15 minutes at which time the dispatcher will advise the watch commander and the call will be assigned to any available unit.

Priority III calls involve routine requests for police services that involve no imminent threat to the safety of persons or the potential for significant property damage. The dispatching of an MPD unit to a Priority III call will not be delayed more than one hour, at which time the dispatcher will advise the watch commander and a decision will be made will be made on how to handle the call at that time.

Personnel

Total Personnel

In 2007, the MPD exceeded 3,900 sworn members.

Sworn Personnel, by Rank (2007)

More than 3 out of every 4 sworn members are officers or detectives.

Sworn Attrition vs. Hiring

The MPD's Recruiting Branch has worked hard to keep up with attrition and expand the police force.

| Number of Members | 2003 | 2004 | 2005 | 2006 | 2007 |
|-------------------|------|------|------|------|------|
| Lost to Attrition | 175 | 245 | 228 | 210 | 174 |
| Hired | 247 | 300 | 228 | 241 | 294 |

Ranks of the Metropolitan Police Department

While every sworn member of the Department is a police officer by profession, he or she is further identified by rank.

- Recruit Officer (attending the Institute of Police Science)
- Officer/Master Patrol Officer/
Senior Police Officer/Investigator
- Detective
- Sergeant
- Lieutenant
- Captain
- Inspector
- Commander
- Assistant Chief
- Chief of Police

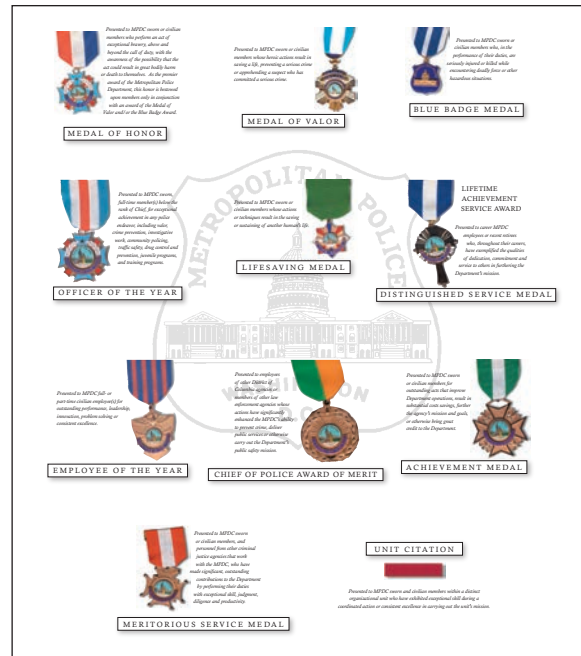

Award Categories

In 2007, Chief Lanier implemented a new approach to recognizing the Department's sworn and civilian members. Rather than have one large ceremony at the end of the year, members now receive their awards shortly after the commendable action, at one of her regularly-held crime briefings. In 2007, almost 800 members received awards.

- ★ Achievement Medal (422)
- ★ Chief of Police Special Award (1)
- ★ COP Customized Community Policing Award (58)
- ★ Department Blue Badge Medal (1)

FBI Uniform Crime Reporting Offenses

Like most other jurisdictions, the Metropolitan Police Department (MPD) reports crime two different ways. Primarily, the Department reports crimes that are defined in the District of Columbia Criminal Code (DC Code Index Offenses). This is according to local law and is it how officers classify offenses and makes arrests. The MPD also generates crime data using uniformly established guidelines that were developed by the Federal Bureau of Investigation as the Uniform Crime Reporting System, or UCR.

The MPD relies on the DC Code Index Offense information for daily operational and deployment decisions. Residents access this same information to make informed decisions. The MPD has included DC Code Index Offenses in this Annual Report in order to provide an accurate picture of crime trends as they are actually happening in the District of Columbia and because that is how crime is reported to the MPD by residents (see page 14). It is also how crime information is shared with the residents of the District of Columbia.

UCR Crime information has been included here so that residents have access to that standardized crime data. To compare crime trends to other jurisdictions using UCR data, please visit the FBI website www.fbi.gov/ucr/ucr.htm.

| FBI UCR Part I Crime Definitions |
| The UCR provides a consistent measure of serious crime that can be compared across police agencies. |
| Murder: The willful killing of a person. |
| Forcible Rape: The carnal knowledge of a female forcibly and against her will. |
| Robbery: The taking, or attempting to take anything of value from the care, custody, or control of a person or persons by force or threat of force or violence and/or by putting the victim in fear. |
| Aggravated Assault: An unlawful attack by one person upon another for the purpose of inflicting severe or aggravated bodily injury. This type of assault is usually accompanied by the use of a weapon or by means likely to produce death or great bodily harm. |
| Burglary: The unlawful entry of a structure to commit a felony or theft. |
| Larceny/Theft: The unlawful taking, carrying, leading or riding away of property from the possession or constructive possession of another. |
| Motor Vehicle Theft: The theft or attempted theft of a motor vehicle. "Motor vehicle" includes automobiles, trucks and buses, and other self-propelled vehicles that run on land surfaces and not rails. |
| Arson: Any willful or malicious burning or attempt to burn, with or without intent to defraud, a dwelling house, public building, motor vehicle or aircraft, personal property of another, etc. |

UCR Part I Crime Rates (per 100,000 population)

The District's per-capita Index crime rate in 2007 was 32 percent less than what it was just 10 years earlier.

FBI UCR Part I Violent Crimes

Murder

For the first time since the mid-1980s, DC has recorded fewer than 200 homicides per year for the past four years.

Forcible Rape

The number of sexual assaults in 2007 has decreased 30 percent since 2003.

Robbery

The number of robberies citywide has increased slightly in recent years.

Aggravated Assault

Aggravated assaults have declined 20 percent since 2003 — 29 percent since 2001.

FBI UCR Part I Property Crimes

Burglary

There were 38 percent fewer burglaries in 2007 than in 1998.

Larceny/Theft

Larceny/thefts rose slightly in 2007, but still declined 32 percent over the past decade.

Motor Vehicle Theft

Auto thefts have declined over 23 percent since 2003.

Arson

After rising in 2003, reported arson offenses has remained below 100 from 2004 through 2007.

Appendix C: Remembering Our Fallen Heroes

The Metropolitan Police Department dedicates this report to the outstanding and heroic members who died in the line of duty. Their service and sacrifice are deeply appreciated and forever remembered.
