Message from Metropolitan Police Department

Chief Robert J. Contee, III

Robert J. Contee, III
Chief, Metropolitan Police Department

As I reflect on 2021, I am both inspired by and proud of our city for demonstrating such resiliency and strength during the many moments of uncertainty we faced over the year. The challenges we have encountered are like none we could have imaged in our lifetimes. Nevertheless, the members of the Metropolitan Police Department remained committed to serve and protect you and your communities every day, and I feel privileged to lead a department unwavering in this mission of public safety and justice.

As a newly-minted police chief, I would not have anticipated the shocking events that occurred on January 6th, when rioters tried to seize the United States Capitol. The MPD responded to the call for service without faltering. Our members' dedication to protecting the Capitol and their courage in the face of unknown dangers that day amaze me. The men and women of the MPD truly are heroes.

But the truth is that the members of this department—both the sworn and professional staff—never cease to impress me. Following all the shock and trauma of the insurrection, the dedicated members of the MPD continued to give their all by fighting crime and building strong community connections throughout the year.

While we still have a lot of work to do, I am proud of the accomplishments our department has made this year. I look forward to continuing to grow and nurture existing partnerships we have with communities across the city and to build new ones. These partnerships play a pivotal role in MPD accomplishing its mission: to reduce violence, to deter crime, and to make our city the safest in the nation. I am confident that we will continue this work together in 2022.

About

Robert J. Contee, III

Robert J. Contee, III, has strong ties to the District of Columbia. He is a lifelong resident of DC and a proud graduate of DC Public Schools.

Robert J. Contee, III, began his career in law enforcement as a Metropolitan Police Department police cadet in November 1989. He became a sworn member of the Department three years later and quickly rose through the ranks, serving in a variety of assignments. He has served as commander of the Second, Sixth and First police districts, before being promoted to Assistant Chief in 2016. In these leadership positions, Contee oversaw the Professional Development Bureau, Patrol Services South, and the Investigative Services Bureau. Contee was selected by Mayor Muriel Bowser to serve as Chief of the Metropolitan Police Department and was sworn-in on January 2, 2021, just four days before the January 6th insurrection.

Community Policing & Police Patrols

About Police Districts and Police Service Areas

There are seven police districts in Washington, DC, and each police district is divided into three sectors, which are groups of Police Service Areas (PSAs). There are a total of 57 PSAs in the District of Columbia. Each police district has between seven and nine PSAs.

Every resident lives in a PSA, and every PSA has a team of assigned police officers and officials. Through regularly-scheduled meetings, residents have the opportunity to get to know their PSA team members and learn how to work with them to address crime and disorder in their neighborhoods.

Each PSA holds regular meetings open to our residents, business community, and other stakeholders. We encourage our communities to take advantage of the opportunity not only to share feedback and ideas with MPD during these sessions, but also learn how we can all contribute to a safer public safety ecosystem.

Year in Review

When Robert J. Contee, III was sworn in as Chief of the Metropolitan Police Department (MPD) on January 2, 2021, no one anticipated the events that would transpire a few short days later. On January 6, 2021, thousands of rioters descended on the United States Capitol. Protests and demonstrations are regular occurrences in the Washington, DC, but nothing could have prepared the members for what occurred this day. Officers were called upon to protect the US Capitol and members of Congress; and through their bravery and heroism, protected our democracy.

Before the day was over, the mob had been cleared, making it safe for lawmakers to continue the counting of electoral ballots. The election of Joseph R. Biden as the 46th president was certified, with his inauguration set for January 20th.

Every four years, Washington, DC hosts the swearing-in of the president of the United States of America. During previous inaugurations, the population of the city swelled with visitors wishing to be a part these historic moments and celebrate the democratic process. In 2021, however, on the heels of the insurrection and while the ongoing public health emergency raised concern, Washington, DC looked and felt different. Plans for this historic event, which MPD began almost a year earlier were quickly amended to address new security concerns. Fences were erected, traffic was rerouted, and checkpoints were stationed throughout downtown DC. Security measures were at a level the city had never seen before. Even with the additional security—as well as the ongoing COVID safety protocols—the inauguration

I will never forget their valor and fearlessness to protect our nation
on that day.

Robert J. Contee, III

was a success. The MPD swore in hundreds of law enforcement officers from agencies across the nation to support this event. The National Guard also assisted, as they had remained in the city since the insurrection two weeks earlier.

As the country recovered from the shock of the insurrection, the Metropolitan Police Department also moved forward, focusing on implementing innovative policing and outreach programs under the leadership of Robert J. Contee, III. Successful Summer and Fall Crime Prevention Initiatives have proven to be useful tools for MPD's ongoing efforts to address violent crime in the District of Columbia.

Additionally, community and youth outreach programs continue to help strengthen the connections necessary to build positive relationships and more effective communication with the partners in the neighborhoods that MPD serves.

Over the past year, the District of Columbia, along with other major cities across the country, have faced rising levels of gun violence. The residents of DC deserve to feel safe and secure when walking the streets of Washington, DC, and the Metropolitan Police Department has created a number of new initiatives to combat the increase in this type of violence. In an effort to reduce and address violent crime, MPD implemented an intelligence-led policing strategy that focuses on individuals who are committing violent acts and uses data-driven deployment strategies to supplement existing patrol district resources in areas of the city that are experiencing higher volumes of criminal activity, emerging crime trends, and/or significant events.

The Metropolitan Police Department is committed to making DC safe for all residents and visitors. Our members remain focused on removing illegal guns from our neighborhoods, holding violent offenders accountable, and preventing crime. For example, in early 2021, MPD created a regional task force to address carjackings, auto thefts and unauthorized use of vehicle offenses throughout DC. The task force consists of a team of detectives who specialize in robberies and violent crime.

Additionally, the National Integrated Ballistic Information Network (NIBIN) Investigations Unit was created in 2021. In partnership with the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives (ATF) and United States Attorney's Office in DC, this intelligence-led group supports the investigations and prosecutions of non-fatal shootings, homicides, and violent gun offenders in the city. MPD has dedicated detectives and intel analysts to this team to help identify potential links to crime scenes, firearms, shooters, and retaliatory activities.

Creating strong connections with young people in the community is a priority for the Metropolitan Police Department.

Year in Review

Chief Robert J. Contee, III, made the executive decision in January 2021 to elevate the importance of intelligence-led policing by re-establishing the Intelligence Division. This decision was made in part as a result of the identified concerns in the aftermath of January 6 insurrection. Since its inception, the Intelligence Division has forged partnerships with private sector organizations to share information; conducted threat assessments and briefings; and provided intelligence on major events.

Reducing gun violence continues to be a top priority for the Metropolitan Police Department. In 2021, the MPD made over 2,300 illegal firearm recoveries. The Department is seeing an uptick in “ghost guns” and “glock switches” on these guns, which is one of the reasons why MPD partnered with the ATF to offer an additional reward of up to $5,000 for the recovery of these illegal firearms and arrest of the individual possessing or trafficking them. “Ghost guns” are unserialized and untraceable firearms that can be bought online and assembled at home; “glock switches” are 3D-printed parts used to turn untraceable “ghost guns” into fully automatic weapons.

Established in 2010, the Summer Crime Prevention Initiative (SCPI) is a collaborative effort to reduce violent crime through strategic prevention and focused enforcement. The SCPI has been so successful, that, in 2019, the MPD established the Fall Crime Prevention Initiative (FCPI). Both the Summer and Fall Crime Prevention Initiatives continued in 2021 with much success. During the last FCPI, the department focused on areas that experienced a high density of violent crimes, including upticks in gun violence, and data from that initiative shows a 43 percent reduction in homicides and four percent reductions in assaults with dangerous weapons (ADWs) in these areas when compared to 2020. For communities grappling with gun violence and other serious violent crime, the enhanced level of coordination and support during an SCPI or FCPI can offer a respite from violence and needed resources to the neighborhood. In the combined 2021 SCIs, violent crime decreased 20 percent compared to the same time the previous year. MPD also coordinated a Fall Crime Initiative, which saw 11 percent reductions in violent crime in those areas.

The Metropolitan Police Department’s Community Focused Patrol Unit (CPFU) was created in July 2021 to supplement to patrol district deployment in communities experiencing higher violent crime. Officers are deployed on bicycles and scooters to increase opportunities for community engagement and communication. Early analysis shows that CPFU deployment to an area had an immediate impact, with a significant reduction in violent crime during their deployments.

Creating strong community connections is a priority for the Metropolitan Police Department. In 2021, Chief Contee established a citywide

Year in Review

engagement initiative focused fostering positive relationships between the MPD and its community members. Through the “Strengthening Community Connections” initiative, each bureau was tasked with coordinating four one-day initiatives that supplement patrol districts with non-patrol members and build connections with the identified community. MPD members got new insights into the needs of different communities and our partners had an opportunity to meet and talk to members of the Department. The MPD hosted a variety of events focusing on the diverse communities they serve. Sporting tournaments, barbecues, health and safety fairs, and National Night Out activities give members of the MPD exciting ways to foster positive relationships with the public.

Acknowledging the critical role that young people play in engaging with and working on behalf of their communities, the Youth and Family Engagement Bureau (YFEB) was established in May 2021. Members of the YFEB—which includes MPD’s Youth and Family Services Division (YFSD) and the School Safety Division (SSD)—connect with youth throughout the year through. Mentoring programs, like the “Think Like a Queen,” inspire young women to pursue their professional goals. Summer music events like “Beat the Streets” draw large numbers of people of all ages to enjoy the music of their friends and neighbors... as well as MPD’s very own Side by Side Band.

The YFEB also hosted Chief Contee’s First Annual Youth Summit on Saturday, December 4, 2021 at Eastern Senior High School. This event, facilitated by MPD and the George Washington University, focused on open dialogue about the problems youth face in their individual communities. It also gave MPD first-hand knowledge on how our youth believe the Metropolitan Police Department can be more effective addressing racial, social, and economic disparities and inequities within their communities. With almost 100 youth in attendance, those who participated in the summit knew their voices were being heard and their feedback was being taken seriously by the MPD.

The youth of DC aren't just "in" the community; they are also joining the MPD as members of the Cadet Corps, a specialized program through which DC high school graduates serve as uniformed, civilian employees. Cadets earn a salary while also taking college courses at the University of the District of Columbia Community College. They spend part of their time working specific job assignments for MPD while also working toward their degree. The cadets are put on the track to enter into MPD's Police Officer Recruit Program at the Metropolitan Police Academy. The program helps cadets develop the leadership and analytical thinking skills required to meet the challenges of their complex roles as problem-solvers, service providers, and professionals in the criminal justice system of the 21st century.

MPD's Cadet Program is one of Mayor Muriel Bowser's important long-term investments in developing pathways to the middle class and strengthening police-community relations. In FY21, MPD started its first recruit class comprised entirely of graduates of the Cadet Program.

Year in Review

In November 2021, the Bowser administration announced legislation to expand MPD's Cadet Corps program qualifications to include current DC residents who attended high schools outside of the District of Columbia, which makes it possible for the department to hire all qualified young adults under 25 that are District residents.

Additionally, the Metropolitan Police Academy also relaunched the High School Cadet Program (HSCP) for senior-year high school students in the District of Columbia. HSCP will be structured as a part-time program to allow high school seniors to go to school while still continuing their high school curriculum. Upon graduation from high school or the obtainment of a GED, the cadet would be converted to a full time member of the Cadet Corps program and enroll in the University of the District of Columbia Community College.

The Metropolitan Police Department also implemented a new recruiting initiative toward the end of 2021. The campaign included vibrant colors and innovative messaging designed to attract younger professionals who may not have traditionally considered a career in policing, but have highly-desirable skills.

Looking Forward

The Metropolitan Police Department has

Year in Review

implemented many initiatives to address crime and engage the community. The Department will continue to be laser-focused on curbing violence, particularly gun violence, but there is still much work ahead of us.

The MPD will continue to improve police services, expand outreach, and identify new ways to connect with our communities—especially our youth. Department efforts to recruit qualified men and women to join the department will grow.

Through community-focused patrols, intelligence-led policing, and strengthened community connections, the MPD and the District of Columbia will be in an even stronger position to further reduce crime—thanks to the hard work and dedication of our employees and our partners in the community.

MPD In Action

January 6, 2021

American history books carved out space for a new chapter, with the Metropolitan Police Department assuming a heroic role, racing to the grounds of the United States Capitol building on January 6, 2021. The horrific images from that day will be etched in our collective memory but so too will be the valiant acts of our members. MPD's bravery and perseverance not only proved triumphant, but allowed for US government officials to complete one of our country's most hallowed traditions. In the months and weeks following that January day, US officials acknowledged MPD's courageous acts of valor, including the presentation of the Congressional Gold Medal.

Valor is defined as showing great courage in the face of danger, and there has been no better illustration of this than what the world witnessed from our law enforcement members that day. A mob of thousands launched a violent assault on the United States Capitol in an attempt to halt the counting of the electoral ballots. The mob's sustained assault at the Capitol precipitated an equally unprecedented response, with an urgent request for MPD to come defend the Capitol. Without hesitation, our officers responded to the grounds to restore order and defend our country's democratic process. We were confronted by individuals engaged in heinous behavior, destruction, and with the intent to cause harm to our officers and anyone else who stood in their way or who sought to proceed with Congress' business". People from all over the world were watching this day unfold in front of them on television screens and through social media platforms. What they also saw was a police department that did not retreat, and though outnumbered, were determined to protect the Capitol.

Exhausted and injured, our officers spent hours fending off violent acts aimed at them. They endured this treatment without wavering in their duty. They upheld their oath, to protect and serve, in the face of adverse circumstances. Their bravery is a testament to their commitment to our community and nation, and this courage is a reflection of their spirit.

We are immensely proud of the work that MPD did that day to return the legislative body to the Capitol and restore order to the democratic process. Their actions were poignant and powerful. Our efforts to defend our nation's capital against a violent insurrection to allow democracy to prevail provided a glimpse into the mantra of the Metropolitan Police Department: "Excellence is Transferrable."

The reality of emergencies is that they frequently come unannounced, and they can happen in any community. First responders have a tremendous obligation in times of crisis. They depend on each other in these moments to offer direction, stability and solutions to challenging problems that are often unpredictable. But if history has taught us anything, it is that we are resilient. And that resiliency leads us to achieve some remarkable things. In this case, we fended off an insurrection at the US Capitol.

NOTE: The MPD's homicide clearance rate is calculated by dividing the total number of homicide cases closed in a calendar year by the total number of homicides that occurred in that year. The cases closed can be for homicides that occurred in the current year or in the prior years. In other words, some clearances recorded in a particular calendar year may pertain to offenses that occurred in previous years. A case is "cleared" when, for any given crime, at least one person has been arrested, charged and turned over to the prosecutors, or in exceptional circumstances, such as when the offender died.

Calls for Service

Answering and dispatching both emergency and non-emergency calls is the responsibility of the Office of Unified Communications (OUC), an independent District agency. Calls dispatched to MPD may be responded to in person, by a sworn member or by the MPD’s Telephone Reporting Unit (TRU). During the COVID-19 public health emergency, MPD expanded the function of the TRU. For the information below, MPD pulls the Computer Aided Dispatch (CAD) call for service data from a data feed originating from OUC, which manages the CAD system for the District. The calls for service data provided in the data feed include Priority I, II, and III calls as defined below, which account for more than 99% of all MPD calls for service.

Calls for Service

There are multiple factors contributing to this increased response time. MPD started to see an increase in response time beginning in June 2020, at the time of enhanced deployments for First Amendment assemblies. Since then, in addition to ongoing assemblies, the January 6th insurrection resulted in injuries and continuing security risks. MPD has also had periods with high rates of COVID absences, either from illness or quarantine. The most significant impact was likely from the net loss of more than 250 officers in just 15 months due to cuts in MPD’s budget.

	2020	2021	Change 2020 v. 2021
Calls for Service	573,849	547,282	-5%
Priority 1 Response Time	5 min 33 sec	7 min 1 sec	1 min 28 second slower response time

NOTE: Total Calls for Service” include all Priority I, II and III calls which MPD action is initiated. The response time metric reflects the “dispatch to arrival” time of MPD units. Calls received by the Telephone Reporting Unit (TRU) are included in MPD’s total calls, but are not included in response time.

Calls for Service

Distribution of Citywide Calls for Service

The majority of calls to the MPD and TRU consisted of Priority I, II, and III Calls.

Of those 547,282 calls for service in 2021, 55% were Priority II calls.

Priority I, II and III Calls

Priority I calls involve circumstances where an imminent threat to the safety of persons or the potential for significant property damage exists resulting in a Code 1 (lights and sirens) response being authorized. These calls will be dispatched without delay to any available unit within the Police Service Area (PSA) or police district, including to officials and watch commanders if no other unit is available.

Priority II calls involve circumstances that require immediate dispatch and response, but most do not involve any imminent threat to the safety of persons or the potential for significant property damage. In the event such a threat is identified in any Priority II call, a Code 1 response can be authorized and it will be handled the same as a Priority I call. The dispatching of an MPD unit to a Priority II call shall not be delayed more than 15 minutes, at which time the dispatcher will advise the watch commander and the call will be assigned to any available unit.

Priority III calls involve routine requests for police services that involve no imminent threat to the safety of persons or the potential for significant property damage. The dispatching of an MPD unit to a Priority III call will not be delayed more than one hour, at which time the dispatcher will advise the watch commander, and a decision will be made on how to handle the call at that time.

Crime Briefing Awards

Members are presented with awards throughout the year at regularly-scheduled Crime Briefings. In 2021, 435 awards were presented. Of those awards, 428 Metropolitan Police Department members and seven outside law enforcement agency members received the awards listed below.

- Achievement Medal (335)
- Lifesaving Medal (56)
- Medal of Merit (7)
- Meritorious Service Medal (2)
- Unit Citation Ribbon (35)

MPD Annual Awards Ceremony

On October 18, 2021, professional staff and sworn members of the Metropolitan Police Department were honored at the 21st Annual Awards Ceremony—an annual event that recognizes its members' hard work and dedication to protect the safety of Washingtonians—specifically during the coronavirus pandemic, the January 6 insurrection, and the ongoing efforts to reduce gun violence.

Almost 50 awards were presented to MPD members, community partners, and federal law enforcement partners. During the ceremony, a Ribbon of Valor was presented to approximately 1,000 MPD and outside law enforcement members who directly supported the District of Columbia's response to the attack of the United States Capitol on January 6, 2021.

- Crime Reduction
- Officer of the Year
- Police Service Area of the Year

- Deborah Ennis Professional Staff Employee of the Year
- Keith Williams School Resource Officer of the Year
- Amin Muslim Professional Staff Manager of the Year
- Chief of Police Special Award
- Reserves Corps members and their 70th year in service
- MPD members and outside law enforcement members who assisted with restoring democracy during the January 6 insurrection at the U.S. Capitol

Use of Force

The Metropolitan Police Department remains committed to the highest standards of constitutional, fair, and ethical policing. This Department takes seriously the authority and responsibility to use the force response that is reasonably necessary to bring a situation under control.

Citizen Complaints

The Metropolitan Police Department (MPD) notifies the Office of Police Complaints (OPC) of all citizen complaints it receives, and the OPC determines which agency (MPD or OPC) will investigate the complaint, with the exception of criminal complaints. The MPD investigates all criminal complaints.

Complaints Received by the Office of Police Complaints and the Metropolitan Police Department

In 2021, 701 citizen complaint cases were submitted to the Metropolitan Police Department or the Office of Police Complaints. Some complaints involve more than one allegation and/or more than one officer, so the total number of Allegations of Misconduct and the total number of officers involved will not match the number of cases.

CCTV Use in the District of Columbia

The Metropolitan Police Department (MPD) maintains a Closed-Circuit Television (CCTV) system network to support public safety operations in the nation's capital. As authorized by District of Columbia Municipal Regulations, the CCTV system may be used to manage public resources during major public events and demonstrations, to coordinate traffic control on an as-needed basis, and to combat crime in District neighborhoods. The primary goal of the CCTV system is to enhance the safety and security of residents, workers, and visitors in the District of Columbia, while vigorously respecting the privacy rights of individuals.

CCTV for homeland security provides law enforcement with real-time information during major events such as demonstrations, Presidential Inaugurations, and Independence Day. During periods of heightened alert, the system allows police to monitor public spaces around key installations without having to assign a large number of uniformed officers to the task. The CCTV system helps MPD to deploy resources more efficiently and to respond to incidents more quickly and effectively, while continuing to maintain essential neighborhood patrols. MPD continues to utilize neighborhood-based crime cameras, and the agency added 17 new cameras across the city during 2021. Also in 2021, MPD acquired five (5) new mobile CCTV camera trailers. MPD now has total of 23 mobile CCTV camera trailers, which are portable CCTV systems that are rapidly deployed for special events and for use in emerging high-crime areas not currently covered by the existing network of cameras.

CCTV footage is valuable evidence for our detectives and partners conducting criminal investigations. Countless cases, including homicides, carjackings, and sexual assaults have been closed, in part, through the use of CCTV footage. In 2021, MPD upgraded its digital evidence management system, which is used to track and process requests for CCTV footage downloads for investigations. The new system will significantly cut the video download time and get key evidence into the hands of our skilled detectives quickly. Armed with this valuable video evidence, detectives will be able to identify leads and close cases quicker than before.

MPD has continued to expand its various community partnerships involving sharing camera feeds with public and private entities, including through the Capital Shield program. This public/private partnership between the MPD, Kastle Systems and local businesses allows participants to enroll their current security systems with MPD. As an owner, the participant has full access to video and the MPD will also get access to these videos on request during critical incidents. Through the partnership with Kastle the MPD CCTV team is able to access over 800 cameras at 162 locations from private business CCTV systems. Kastle will also continue to donate cameras to local businesses in exchange for participating in this program. Furthermore, MPD partners with District's homeowners and businesses to register their existing cameras to support our investigative efforts. In our new digital evidence management system, homeowners can share footage with MPD entirely remotely, which both saves time and avoids the need for police personnel to physically go to a resident's home to retrieve footage.

Private Security Camera System Incentive Program

The Private Security Camera Incentive Program, administered by the Office of Victim Services and Justice Grants, encourages residents, businesses, non-profits and religious institutions to install security camera systems on their property and register them with the Metropolitan Police Department (MPD). This program is intended to help deter crime and assist law enforcement with investigations.

There are two ways to participate:

The Private Security Camera Rebate Program creates a rebate for residents, businesses, nonprofits, and religious institutions to purchase and install security camera systems on their property and register them with the Metropolitan Police Department (MPD). The program provides a rebate of up to $200 per camera, with a maximum rebate of up to $500 per residential address (e.g., home offices, condo buildings, and apartments) and $750 for all other eligible addresses. The rebate is exclusively for the cost of the camera(s) including any applicable tax.

The Private Security Camera Voucher Program provides a private security camera system to eligible residents free of charge. District residents—either owners or tenants—who receive public assistance may be eligible to have a camera system installed at their home.

If you have questions about the rebate or voucher program, please visit <https://ovsjg.dc.gov> or contact us at security.cameras@dc.gov or 202-727-5124.

FBI Uniform Crime Reporting Program: Migrating from SRS to NIBRS

Like most other jurisdictions, the Metropolitan Police Department (MPD) reports crime two different ways. Primarily, the Department reports crimes that are defined in the District of Columbia Criminal Code. This is according to local law and is how officers classify offenses and makes arrests. The MPD also generates crime data using uniformly established guidelines that were developed by the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) as the Uniform Crime Reporting Program, or UCR.

The UCR provides reliable, standardized statistics across all jurisdictions for use in law enforcement. It also provides information for students of criminal justice, researchers, the media, and the public. The Program, which has been providing crime statistics since 1930, includes data from more than 18,000 city, university and college, county, state, tribal, and federal law enforcement agencies. Agencies participate voluntarily and submit their crime data either through a state UCR program or directly to the FBI's UCR Program.

The National Incident-Based Reporting System (NIBRS) was implemented to improve the overall quality of crime data collected by law enforcement for use in the UCR Program. NIBRS captures details on each single crime incident—as well as on separate offenses within the same incident. In 2021, the historic Summary Reporting System (SRS) data collection, which collected more limited information than the more robust NIBRS, was phased out.

Appendix B

FBI Uniform Crime Reporting Program: Migrating from SRS to NIBRS

In 2021 the Federal Bureau of Investigations (FBI) changed how it measures and reports Uniform Crime Reporting (UCR) data. To comply with the new mandate, on August 1, 2021, MPD launched the new Mark43 Record Management System (RMS) and began reporting individual crime incidents to the National Incident-Based Reporting System (NIBRS). Because the FBI requires agencies to provide a full year of NIBRS data for publishing purposes., and the MPD reporting system transitioned to NIBRS mid-year in August 2021, the 2021 data will not be published by the FBI UCR Program. MPD's data will be published for the year 2022 with NIBRS reporting for the full year.

Looking for Crime Statistics?

The Metropolitan Police Department (MPD) relies on the DC Code Index Offense information for daily operational and deployment decisions. The MPD has included DC Code Index Offenses in this Annual Report as this data correctly reflects the crime incidents occurring in DC and reported to MPD (see page 22). It also accurately matches the crime data statistics shared with the residents of the District [B(1) of Columbia. DC residents access the DC Code Index data to make informed decisions.

Appendix C

Bias-Related Crime in DC

The Metropolitan Police Department (MPD) is committed to working with the community to address bias-motivated crimes in our city. All individuals – whether they are members of targeted communities or those who might commit a hate crime – should know that intolerance and hate crimes have no place in our vibrant city. While the District strives to reduce crime for all residents of and visitors to the city, hate crimes can make a targeted community feel more vulnerable and fearful. In order to combat hate crimes, everyone must work together not just to address specific allegations of hate crimes but also to consistently send a message that they do not reflect DC values. This report highlights the law in the District, recent trends in hate or bias-related crimes, and efforts in the District to address them.

Bias-Related Crimes Law

Under the Bias-Related Crime Act of 1989 (D.C. Official Code § 22-3700 et. seq.), a bias-related, or hate, crime is a criminal act or attempted criminal act that “demonstrates an accused’s prejudice based on the actual or perceived race, color, religion, national origin, sex, age, marital status, personal appearance, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, family responsibility, homelessness, physical disability, matriculation, or political affiliation of a victim.”

It is important for the community to understand what is—and is not—a hate crime. First and foremost, the incident must be a crime. Although that may seem obvious, most speech is not a hate crime, regardless of how offensive it may be. In addition, a hate crime is not a specific crime; it is a designation that makes available to the court an enhanced penalty if prosecutors seek a bias crime enhancement. Prosecutors have the challenge of establishing, beyond a reasonable doubt, that a

How Do I Report Hate Crimes?

If you have been the victim of a hate crime, or believe you know of or have witnessed a hate crime, you can report this to MPD in several ways.

- Call 911, for any crime still in progress or that has just happened.
- Call or visit your local MPD district station.
- Call the Hate Crimes Voicemail at (202) 727-0500, which allows individuals in the District of Columbia to provide information regarding hate crimes anonymously. Please note that MPD may not be able to investigate the report as a crime if there is not enough information, so contact information for any follow up questions is helpful.
- Mail or email a written statement with the complaint that contains information to support a claim that the incident constitutes a bias-related crime. Statements may be sent to:

defendant was motivated by prejudice because of an actual or perceived difference.

In short, under the law, there is no specific hate crime but rather a crime demonstrating the bias of the offender. If a person is found guilty of a hate crime, the court may fine the offender up to 1.5 times the maximum fine and imprison him or her for up to 1.5 times the maximum term authorized for the underlying crime.

It can be difficult to establish a motive for a crime, and an offender may be motivated by more than one bias. Moreover, there may not be a bright line between two possible types of classifications. For example, an anti-Semitic crime may target Judaism as a religion, Jewishness as an ethnicity, or Israel as a national origin. Therefore, we caution that the classification as a hate crime is subject to change as an investigation proceeds—even as prosecutors continue an investigation. The category under which it is classified may also be subjective.

Addressing Bias-Related Crime

The Metropolitan Police Department is a leader in the area of combating bias-related crimes. The Department works proactively to support consistent reporting and thorough investigations. The Department's strategy to address bias-related crime includes specialized community policing, enhanced officer training, strong data reporting, and robust investigations.

Several MPD units work together to ensure any potential hate crime reported to MPD is identified and investigated. Patrol is often the first unit to identify a hate crime and must note on a police report that there are possible hate crime indicators. Notification is made to the Special Liaison Branch so that they can work with the victim and the community, and to detectives to conduct a thorough investigation into both the criminal elements and the possible motive.

Bias-Related Crime in DC

Importantly, it is not up to a patrol officer to conclude whether a crime is motivated by bias but only to note that there may be hate crime indicators. Instead, all potential hate crimes are jointly reviewed by an MPD panel to ensure that cases are appropriately classified.

The Department recognizes that it can be difficult for victims to come forward or to report that a crime seemed to be motivated by bias, but we want to assure community members that our officers take every incident seriously and that they will be treated with dignity and compassion. If MPD is able to make an arrest, the case is presented to prosecutors, who then make their own determination on whether there is enough evidence to take the case to trial.

Special Liaison Branch

The Department's Special Liaison Branch (SLB) is a model for community policing in its work with historically underserved communities. For more than two decades, the SLB has worked closely with the District's vibrant communities, in particular its African, Asian, Deaf and Hard of Hearing, interfaith, LGBTQ+, and Latino communities. The important work of SLB is carried out by its core members and affiliate officers. The core members are those assigned to the SLB who work on these issues full time. Affiliate officers have volunteered to receive specialized training on diverse communities, issues of importance in the community, and how best to serve them. The affiliates continue to work in their home district but receive coordinated support, information, and trainings through the Liaison Units. They also reinforce the messages of progressive training, policies, and procedures to officers throughout the Department.

A primary role of the Liaison Units is outreach to the represented communities. Although these communities have historically been underserved by law enforcement, this is not the case in the District. The Branch serves as a bridge to members of our larger community whose diversity contributes to the vibrancy of our city. The core and affiliate officers respond to crime scenes and incidents to support members of our community. MPD victim services specialists work with SLB and crime victims in its communities to support and connect them to non-police services. The SLB also works to support the community with incidents which are not necessarily criminal, such as helping to locate missing persons or with death notifications to family members. The Branch hosts and participates in meetings and presentations and provides the community with public safety materials and information that helps promote a better understanding of interacting with MPD members in criminal and casual contact situations.

MPD works to improve the reporting of bias crimes in the community by providing outreach and educational sessions on the importance of reporting crime. For example, SLB members meet monthly with LGBT community advocates focused on violence prevention, speak regularly on Latino radio, and host presentations to and discussions with students about tolerance and safety. In addition to community-building and education efforts, the SLB serves as a communication conduit between the police and the community every day. Members of SLB sometimes receive notification of potential hate crimes directly from the community.

Appendix C

Bias-Related Crime in DC

The SLB also works to support reporting and tracking internally. In 2015, the Department implemented training for all of its members on bias-related crimes, which was delivered by an experienced core or affiliate officer of MPD's LGBT Liaison Unit. SLB members continue to provide cultural competency and hate/bias response training to all cadets and recruits, and reminders are provided to all members at roll calls throughout the year. In 2020, SLB also provided a specialized detective training on hate crimes.

2021 in Review In the Community

The strong relationships that SLB has built through consistent presence and partnership in the community was a valuable asset in 2021 as the city and the nation grappled with the second year of the COVID-19 pandemic. The Asian Liaison Unit (ALU) and affiliates in the districts make routine contact with Asian-owned establishments and Asian residents and provide resources such as language interpretation. ALU held safety seminars and other outreach events for the senior community at the Wah Luck House and the Moy Family Association, both in Chinatown. Additionally, ALU provides contact information to ensure that Limited-English Proficient (LEP) and

Appendix C

Bias-Related Crime in DC

Non/No-English Proficient (NEP) persons are able to communicate effectively with MPD.

Throughout the pandemic, the Department, particularly SLB and ALU, has been mindful of the risk of hate crimes targeting members of the Asian community, especially in light of several high-profile crimes targeting people of Asian descent around the nation. Through routine business checks and community contacts, the ALU actively encourages reporting of crimes by the Asian community. In the District, there were twenty-two reported bias offenses that targeted individuals of Asian descent in 2021 as compared to three in 2020. These offenses consist primarily of simple assaults and threats. In six cases, offenders used statements referencing the origins of the COVID-19 virus. In total, 50 percent (11 cases) of these cases have been closed by arrest.

Citywide, SLB continued their relationship-building within the vibrant communities they serve. They serve as a prominent resource to historically underserved communities by holding events, engaging the community, educating about crime prevention, and bridging the gap between the community and police. For example, members of LLU celebrated the Three Kings holiday by delivering gifts, donated by the Palisades Collective and the Police Foundation, to 35 families throughout the city. They also visited construction sites throughout the city to talk about robbery trends. The Deaf and Hard of Hearing Unit interpreted a demonstration by various units within the Special Operations Division, including the K-9 Unit, for students at the Maryland School for the Deaf.

impact from the escalating negative discourse and intolerance around the country that has given rise to more bias-motivated crimes. Nationwide, individuals are targeted for where they were born, what language they speak in public, who they love, what race or ethnicity they identify with, and what religion they follow. Places that we all thought were safe spaces – schools, churches, synagogues, government buildings – have all been targets of violent hate. While the Internet has transformed our daily lives, it has also made it very easy to find receptive audiences for sharing hatred, bigotry, and extremism. Based on crimes reported to MPD, hate crimes in the District increased in 2021. Comparing 2021 to 2020, reported hate crimes increased by 13 percent (17 crimes). This increase was not surprising due to a low number of crimes reported in 2020 during the COVID-19 public health emergency and stay-home orders. With the orders lifted and people resuming social activities, opportunities for crime increased. That said, hate crimes in 2021 were 27 percent lower than in 2019 or 2018, before the public health emergency.

Data on hate crimes are also available on the MPD webpage (www.mpd.cdc.gov/hatecrimes). Summary data is posted monthly, and more detailed hate crime data, including the crime type, where and when a crime occurred, and the bias type, is updated quarterly.

While we strive to create an environment where residents feel safe and supported, the reality is that the District exists within the larger context of our country where hate and extremism has been on the rise. The Department is committed to working with our partners in the community and government to combat hate crimes, and ensure the District remains an inclusive, vibrant city.

Victims of Criminal Activity: U-Visa Program

Congress created the U-Visa program with the passage of the Victims of Trafficking and Violence Protection Act (including the Battered Immigrant Women's Protection Act) in October 2000. The U-Visa program benefits cooperating victims, witnesses or guardians of qualified criminal activity that have suffered substantial physical or mental abuse as a result of having been a victim of criminal activity. The Metropolitan Police Department assists victims of criminal activity in the District of Columbia through the U-Visa program.

If an individual is an alien and a victim of a qualifying criminal activity, they should complete US Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) Form I-918 to petition for temporary immigration benefits for themselves and their qualifying family members, as appropriate. If the victim's case is still open, the form should be submitted to the police agency that took the initial police report. That agency will verify the information, sign the document, and mail the form back to the victim or their attorney for further processing.

Littering Enforcement in DC

Littering Enforcement in the District of Columbia

The Metropolitan Police Department (MPD) provides this report in compliance with the Anti-Littering Amendment Act of 2008, effective March 20, 2009 (D.C. Law 17-314, D.C. Official Code § 8-812). For more than a decade, MPD has been authorized to issue littering tickets and has monitored and reported on enforcement. However, unless an individual litters while driving a vehicle, they cannot be required to present identification to police. The result has been a system in which violators cannot be identified and default on more than half of the resulting non-traffic tickets. This, coupled with changing expectations of law enforcement, has led to a steady decrease in tickets issued to pedestrians.

General Littering

In order to issue a ticket, an officer must personally observe the litterer intentionally or carelessly dropping rubbish, waste matter, refuse, garbage, trash, debris, dead animals or other discarded materials of every kind and description, on public space, in waterways, or on private property not under his or her control. The fine for this littering violation is $75, with any appeals adjudicated by the Office of Administrative Hearings. The number of non-traffic littering tickets issued and dismissed in calendar year 2021 is provided below.

The penalty for the offense is a $100 fine, with any appeals adjudicated by the Department of Motor Vehicles. The number of tickets issued and dismissed in calendar year 2021 is provided below.

Citizen Complaints

The Metropolitan Police Department (MPD) is committed to providing professional, high-quality services to all; MPD does not tolerate misconduct or wrongdoing on the part of its members. If you believe you have been subjected to, or witnessed, police misconduct of any type, MPD encourages you to report the incident to either MPD or the Office of Police Complaints (OPC). There are many convenient ways for you to file complaints, including in-person, over the telephone, or via mail, email or fax.

What is the Process Once a Citizen Complaint is Made?

A complaint may be submitted to either the Metropolitan Police Department (MPD) or the Office of Police Complaints (OPC). The MPD notifies the OPC of all complaints it receives, and the OPC determines which agency (MPD or OPC) will investigate the complaint, with the exception of criminal complaints. The MPD investigates all criminal complaints.

1. When MPD receives a completed complaint, it is transmitted to OPC for evaluation and determination of investigative authority.
2. If a complaint is referred to MPD by OPC, the MPD official responsible for investigating the complaint contacts you to let you know he or she is investigating the allegation. If necessary, the official will obtain additional information.
3. The complaint is investigated: any available evidence is reviewed, and witnesses and officers (against whom the complaint is filed) are interviewed. The officers are entitled to know the complainant's name, if known, and the nature of the complaint. However, MPD will not reveal the complainant's name if the complainant requests to remain anonymous.
4. Investigation is completed and one of the following conclusions is made:
  - Sustained: A preponderance of the evidence supports that the conduct occurred and the member's actions violated MPD policy or training
  - Insufficient Facts: A preponderance of the evidence does not support that the conduct occurred
  - Exonerated: A preponderance of the evidence supports that the conduct occurred but did not violate MPD policy or training
  - Unfounded: A preponderance of the evidence supports that the conduct did not occur.
5. You are notified of the outcome of the investigation. If you do not agree with the outcome, you may appeal the decision in writing by sending a letter to the Chief of Police at:
