Remembering Our Fallen Heroes

Mission of the Metropolitan Police Department

It is the mission of the Metropolitan Police Department to safeguard the District of Columbia and protect its residents and visitors by providing the highest quality of police service with integrity, compassion, and a commitment to innovation that integrates people, technology and progressive business systems.

Guiding Principles of Chief of Police Cathy L. Lanier

- Reduce crime and the fear of crime in the community.
- Change the culture of the MPD from reacting to crime to building and sustaining safe neighborhoods.
- Position the MPD to be viewed and respected nationally and internationally as a model for how it serves the community.
- Build homeland security into the culture of the MPD and the community without creating fear.
- Make the relationship between police and neighborhoods paramount – tailoring policing to neighborhoods.
- Build on what the MPD is doing right.
- Focus on MPD's routine activities, fostering innovation and initiative, all the while maintaining fiscal accountability.
- Encourage teamwork and leadership at every level of the police Department and throughout the community.
- Emphasize that every MPD employee has the power to influence positive change – and encourage them to improve the service they provide to both the Department and community.
- Throughout the Department, focus on how the MPD can address youth issues.
- Enhance follow-up in all aspects of the Department to meet community needs.

A Message from the Mayor

The programs and priorities implemented under my administration are leading the people in the District of Columbia in the right direction. With a focus on education and employment combined with reforms in the social and human service, agencies are beginning to make a difference. Creative policing initiatives are bringing the police and community members closer together and helping in the fight against crime. The MPD has been able to direct the focus of many of the other local government agencies through Focused Improvement Areas and citywide All Hands On Deck initiatives, which bring critical city services to the people who need them most.

I am pleased with the progress the Metropolitan Police Department has made in 2008 and I look forward to more successes in the future.

A Message from the Chief

As we look back on 2008 and take stock of our efforts, we will turn to data to evaluate our performance and measure our successes. But first, let's briefly reflect on those moments when a member of the community takes measure of an officer – and, in turn, the Department – somewhere beneath the numbers. The officer who soothes a lost child, comforts a distraught parent, assists an elderly gentleman, or calms an angry neighbor might not be publically recognized, but will be remembered fondly. The officer who greets the residents on her beat, listens to the concerns of her community members, runs towards the sound of gun fire, or thwarts a violent robbery is “just doing her job.” These critical moments are not captured in the numbers, but are fundamental to what we do.

I would like to take a moment to express my gratitude for the hard work and dedication of the sworn and civilian members of this police Department who work around the clock to keep the people of this city safe and secure. It is their tireless effort, their sacrifice, their spirit of service, and their devotion to the community that ultimately define this agency.

From their day-to-day activities to the numerous high-profile events that occurred in DC over the past year, I am eternally grateful to all of MPD's employees and their families for the sacrifices they make every day.

Cathy R. Lanier

Year in Review

2008

It is not uncommon for events in Washington, DC to take a national—or international—stage. At times, literally the whole world is watching. In 2008, the Metropolitan Police Department (MPD) continued to receive accolades—local, national and international—for its management of major events. In April, just as the first full season of baseball at the new Nationals Stadium was about to kick off, Pope Benedict the XVI made a historic visit to Washington, DC. During the Pope's visit, he met with political and religious leaders and held the largest Mass the District of Columbia has ever seen. Later, in November, the G20 Summit on the global financial crisis was held. With 20 of the world's premier leaders in attendance, the MPD and numerous other local law enforcement agencies were tasked with ensuring the safety of these important dignitaries. But, day-to-day policing remains one of the key priorities of the sworn and civilian members of the Metropolitan Police Department. The initiatives taken and the successes measured show that customized community policing efforts have taken hold and are having an impact on the people who live, work, and visit DC on a regular basis.

Homicide Closure Rate One of the Highest in 27 Years

In 2008, the District of Columbia recorded fewer than 200 homicides for the fifth year in a row and the Metropolitan Police Department (MPD) had one of the highest homicide case closure rates seen in Washington in 27 years. At 75 percent, the homicide case closure rate is more than 15 percent above the national average for similar-sized cities. The MPD's 65 percent cold case homicide closure rate also sends a clear message: "DC is no longer a city where one can get away with murder; cold cases will not be forgotten." The members of this Department work tirelessly to close every homicide case possible.

Violent crime as a whole was down five percent in 2008, with a more significant decrease in gun crimes. Innovative MPD programs, including the Summer of Safety, All Hands on Deck, Operation Full Stride, and Neighborhood Safety Zones, made June through August 2008 the safest summer in the past five years. There were fewer violent crimes—and fewer violent gun crimes—in the summer of 2008 than any summer since 2003.

In 2008, there was also a marked decrease in officers' response time to calls for service. Throughout all seven police districts, response times to dispatched Priority One calls decreased. This is true even though call volume was up. The average response time for Priority One calls decreased nine percent, while the volume increased by 11 percent.

Engaging With the Community

The MPD is dedicated to reconnecting the community and police through numerous initiatives that focus on enhanced police visibility, improved outreach and collaboration, and new crime solving efforts. Initiatives like Operation Free and All Hands On Deck got more officers on the street. Other programs which focused on neighborhood safety and improved partnerships fostered even stronger relationships between MPD and community members. Finally, innovative crime-solving initiatives have provided alternatives for people who want to remain anonymous while still helping the police fight crime.

"DC is no longer a city where one can get away with murder."

Enhanced Police Visibility. In an effort to increase community-police interaction, crime prevention, and visibility in all of the city's neighborhoods, the Metropolitan Police Department introduced two programs to help re-connect members with the citizens they serve on a daily basis. "Operation FREE" (Focused Re-deployment Enhancement Effort) gives recruits nearing graduation the opportunity to meet members of the communities they will soon serve, increase visibility in the neighborhoods, and provide face-to-face interactions. Operation Full Stride, which added foot patrols to all seven police districts to increase foot patrols across the city, helps citizens get to know the foot beat officers and the leadership team — the sergeants and lieutenants — in their police service area so they can call on them in a time of need or when they have a question. Full Stride will also help MPD increase citizen participation by assisting MPD officers in preventing and solving crimes in the Nation's Capital.

Since January 2007, the MPD has implemented more than 250 foot patrol assignments through Full Stride foot patrols. The MPD continues to expand those beats as new officers complete their training, which has been revised to teach them the value of not only working in the community, but with the community. Through initiatives such as All Hands on Deck and Operation FREE,

★ 2008 Violent Crimes Facts ★

 - ★ Overall violent crime down 5%
 - ★ Assaults involving guns down 14%
 - ★ Robberies involving guns down 12%
 - ★ Safest summer in the past 5 years

each and every officer is learning how meaningful and valuable relationships with the community are created and fostered.

The total number of arrests and the total number of arrests for violent offenses during All Hands on Deck weekends have consistently and substantially increased. Since the start of the Full Stride foot patrol program, officers assigned to foot patrol alone, made over 1,000 arrests, recovered 22 guns, and distributed over 11,000 PSA flyers and 69,000 Full Stride cards.

In 2008, the MPD also re-structured the take-home car program, ensuring more vehicles go to patrol officers who live in the city. This improves police visibility in DC, and, at the same time, reduces fuel consumption.

Outreach and Collaboration. In 2008, Mayor Fenty launched an initiative aimed at reducing criminal activity and increasing quality of life in at-risk communities. The effort involves several District agencies in cooperation with non-governmental community-based organizations. It combines existing community policing efforts with the delivery of other city services. Objectives include increasing employment opportunities, engaging youth in meaningful activities, increasing school attendance and improving neighborhood appearance.

MPD recognizes the importance of engaging the community in policing efforts, including providing them with a better understanding of the criminal justice process. The MPD's School Security Division implemented several new police-youth partnership programs and enhanced existing ones to expand support to schools and DC youth. Programs include the Secure Our School Program, Safe At All Times Program, Back to Basics, and the Youth Advisory Council.

In addition to partnering with DC agencies, MPD collaborated with other local criminal justice agencies—like law enforcement partners in Maryland and Virginia, as well as the Court Services and Offender Supervision Agency and Pretrial Services—to increase community awareness about the courts, and encourage greater understanding of and engagement with the full criminal justice cycle.

The MPD hosted numerous special events to further outreach and collaboration efforts. During one such event, MPD joined with regional law enforcement to recognize 25 years of nationwide community policing. The National Night Out 2008 celebration on the National Mall was a huge success. Agencies from across the Washington region showed their cooperative spirit and created a memorable event on the National Mall. Additionally, exciting neighborhood activities took place across the area. Residents came out to thank their police and communities spent the evening greeting one another and enjoying the atmosphere that National Night Out generates each August. In November 2008, the National Capital Region received 3rd Place for their efforts in coordinating the 25th Anniversary Celebration of National Night Out in Washington, DC.

Cadet Program. The MPD's Police Cadet Program continues to develop and foster the values required in community-based, customer-oriented policing. The program helps young district residents develop the analytical thinking skills required to meet the challenges of today's law enforcement officer. The program pays for 60 college credits while employing the cadets part time. More importantly, the Cadet Program puts the youth of DC on a true career path—giving both the opportunity to get an education and a real career afterward. It works to ensure that prospective members of the MPD will be drawn from the communities it serves. The number of youth—mainly from the Sixth and Seventh Police Districts—who study and train through the MPD's Cadet Program has grown significantly. After having only three cadets in 2006, the class size grew to 21 in 2008. Almost one third of these cadets is likely to become full-time, sworn members of the Department before the end of summer 2009.

Homicide Task Force. A clear objective of the MPD is to reduce crime and the fear of crime in the community. But, regardless of how hard the Department works, some crimes will still occur. When a crime occurs—especially a violent crime—various resources are utilized to try to solve the crime. The homicide task force is an innovative law enforcement strategy used to support homicide investigations and prevent retaliatory violence. The task force analyzes key factors related to shootings immediately after they occur. It also supports detectives by analyzing this information for relevant trends and providing ready access to pertinent information. Members of the task force then quickly disseminate information about potential areas or groups that might be involved in retaliatory violence so that MPD and its partners can respond by enhancing police presence, increasing visits to individuals on probation or parole, or working to mediate conflicts.

Community Support and Cooperation.

Even as the Department's relationship with the community continues to grow through enhanced police visibility, outreach and collaboration, and our Homicide Task Force efforts, the MPD understands that some community members remain reluctant to come forward with vital crime information for a variety of reasons. As a result, additional ways for residents to reach out to the police anonymously have been created. Through the MPD's new toll-free crime tip line—1-888-919-CRIME, anyone who has information concerning a homicide, gangs, guns, or other violent offenses can report it anonymously. Additionally, community members can now provide the police with information, or "give 5-0 the 411," anonymously with the new Text Tip Line: 50411. The new anonymous tip lines, as well as the existing Crime Solvers anonymous tip and reward program, which offers up to $25,000 for information that leads to the arrest and conviction of a homicide suspect, has yielded results—information helped closed at least nine homicide cases in 2008. The total disbursed payouts for information was $225,000.

Innovative Policing

By utilizing new technologies and streamlining ineffective processes, the MPD is becoming a more efficient police Department. Portable technologies allow members to do field activities and paperless reporting, and officers now have more options available to them for training—both in-service and online.

Using Enhanced Portable Technology. The MPD recognizes the importance of utilizing the newest technologies in its ongoing efforts to provide the best police service available. The Department has improved police efficiency by deploying resources such as laptop computers, PDA devices, and take-home cars to patrol members in order to support field activities. Over 800 "tough book" laptops were deployed to police officers in the field and to detectives investigating violent crimes. The laptops enable members to perform basic police functions, like filling out reports and identifying suspects, without returning to a police facility, thus increasing police efficiency and visibility in our neighborhoods.

New Training and Distance Learning Opportunities. The MPD is committed to the ongoing training and professional development of its members. In 2008, the Professional Development Training program was streamlined by reducing the number of in-service training hours, from 40 to 32. At the same time, the Metropolitan Police Academy launched a new distance learning initiative with on-line training modules so that officers can complete a significant portion of their required professional development training remotely, and thus can spend more time on police functions. The Academy can quickly update existing training modules and develop new training modules, including trainings for civilian members of the Department. Members are now immediately tested on new information to confirm that everyone has received essential training. By going to this new model of enhanced in-service training coupled with on-line training options, the MPD has saved almost 30,000 work hours of training back to patrol.

Improved Efficiency in the MPD. The Department has worked aggressively to improve the efficiency of the papering process—specifically the time officers spend preparing paperwork for court—and to control other overtime funded by the District budget. As a result, in FY 2008, locally funded overtime hours were down by nine percent, or more than 57,000 hours. These overtime hours would have cost the city an additional over $2 million. Fuel costs in FY2008 increased by 35.8 percent from the previous year. To help the Department save money and to reduce MPD's impact on the environment, steps to decrease fuel usage have been implemented.

Other Successes

The Department has made significant progress in a number of other areas: the US Department of Justice (DOJ) recognized the advances the MPD made in its efforts to reduce the use of force among our members; numerous dangerous weapons were taken off the streets of DC, many of which had been used in violent crimes; and recruiting efforts continue to bring the MPD closer to its goal of having 4,200 sworn members serving the city.

Use-of-Force. In April 2008, Mayor Fenty and Chief Lanier announced that the Department of Justice (DOJ) agreed to terminate its Memorandum of Agreement on use of force after nearly seven years. As a result, MPD is no longer subject to review by an Independent Monitor. The Department's use-of-force data further reinforces the DOJ's decision. At the close of 2008, the number of police officers who discharged a firearm decreased by 55 percent overall, and there was a 63 percent reduction in fatal shootings.

Dangerous Weapons Removed from DC Streets. Getting dangerous weapons off the streets of DC is integral to further reducing the amount of violent crime in the District of Columbia. In FY 2008, the

	2007	2008	Percent Change
Intentional Firearms Discharges at Persons	31	14	-54.8%
Fatalities Resulting from Intentional Firearm Discharge	8	3	-62.5%
Number of Persons Injured (non-fatal) as a Result of Intentional Firearm Discharge	12	4	-66.7%
Instances of Firarm Discharges at Animals	12	14	16.7%
Accidental/Negligent Firearm Discharges	2	1	-50.0%

The number of officers who discharged a firearm decreased by 55% in 2008.

Department re-established the Gun Recovery Unit, a citywide unit designed to seize firearms. It is staffed with officers who have enhanced training on identifying and recovering illegal guns and who work closely with other jurisdictions. MPD's increased efforts in 2008 netted a 10 percent increase in the number of illegal guns recovered and more than 700 arrests than in 2007.

Recruiting Efforts Bring MPD Closer to Goal of 4,200 Sworn Members. In September 2008, MPD reached a key milestone—the total number of sworn members exceeded 4,000. In addition to increasing sworn membership, resignations among sworn membership decreased 45 percent. Alone, these figures demonstrate the positive steps the Department has taken to attract and retain the highest quality personnel. When highlighted against the backdrop of an exceedingly competitive recruiting environment and our greater standards of hire, these numbers reflect an astounding achievement.

The Path That Lies Before Us

The Metropolitan Police Department has made much progress over the past year. This is not to say that there are no problems or challenges ahead, but, through our enhanced police visibility, improved outreach and collaboration, and new crime solving efforts, the MPD and the District of Columbia will be in an even stronger position to further reduce crime – thanks to the hard work and dedication of our employees and our partners in the community.

★ Other Significant Facts ★

- ★ The number of police officers who discharged a firearm in 2008 decreased by 55%
- ★ Pedestrian fatalities dropped 40% in 2008; total fatalities dropped 26%
- ★ Average response time to calls for service decreased 9%

Customized Community Policing and Police Patrols

To support customized community policing in the MPD, the District of Columbia is divided into seven police districts. Each district is further divided into 5-8 Police Service Areas (PSAs), for a total of 46 PSAs citywide. The PSA is the basic building block of customized community policing in DC. More than two-thirds of all officers are assigned to patrols.

DC Code Index Offenses vs. FBI Uniform Crime Reporting Offenses

Like most other jurisdictions, the Metropolitan Police Department (MPD) reports crime two different ways. Primarily, the Department reports crimes that are defined in the District of Columbia Criminal Code (DC Code Index Offenses). This is according to local law and is how officers classify offenses and makes arrests. The MPD also generates crime data using uniformly established guidelines that were developed by the Federal Bureau of Investigation as the Uniform Crime Reporting System, or UCR.

The MPD relies on the DC Code Index Offense information for daily operational and deployment decisions. Residents access this same information to make informed decisions. The MPD has included DC Code Index Offenses in this Annual Report in order to provide a clear picture of crime trends as they are actually happening in the District of Columbia, and because that is how crime is reported to the MPD by residents. It is also how crime information is shared with the residents of the District of Columbia.

UCR Crime information is also included in Appendix B so that residents have access to that standardized crime data as well. To compare crime trends to other jurisdictions using UCR data, please visit the FBI website www.fbi.gov/ucr/ucr.htm.

DC Code vs. FBI Uniform Crime Definitions

DC Code Index Offense Definitions	FBI UCR Part I Crime Definitions
The MPD relies on the DC Code Index Offenses for daily operational and deployment decisions. Offenders who are arrested in the District of Columbia are prosecuted for the offenses represented in the DC Code.	The UCR provides a consistent measure of serious crime that can be compared across police agencies.
Homicide: Killing of another purposely, in perpetrating or attempting to perpetrate an offense punishable by imprisonment, or otherwise with malice aforethought.	Murder: The willful non-negligent killing of a person.
Sex Assault: One of many sexual acts against another, either forcibly or without his/her permission, and/or against a child or someone who is otherwise incapable of communicating unwillingness. The severity ranges from 1st Degree Sexual Assault to other forms of sexual contact.	Forcible Rape: The carnal knowledge of a female forcibly and against her will.
Robbery: The taking from another person, or immediate actual possession of another, anything of value, by force or violence, whether against resistance or by sudden or stealthy seizure or snatching, or by putting in fear. This category includes carjackings.	Robbery: The taking or attempting to take anything of value from the care, custody, or control of a person or persons by force or threat of force or violence and/or by putting the victim in fear.
Assault with a Dangerous Weapon (ADW): Knowingly or purposely causing serious bodily injury to another person, or threatening to do so; or under circumstances manifesting extreme indifference to human life, knowingly engaging in conduct that creates a grave risk of serious bodily injury to another person, and thereby causes serious bodily injury. Weapons include, but are not limited to, firearms, knives and other objects.	Aggravated Assault: An unlawful attack by one person upon another for the purpose of inflicting severe or aggravated bodily injury. This type of assault is usually accompanied by the use of a weapon or by means likely to produce death or great bodily harm.
Burglary: Breaking and entering, or entering without breaking, any dwelling, bank, store, warehouse, shop, stable, or other building or any apartment or room, whether at the time occupied or not, or any steamboat, canal boat, vessel, other watercraft, railroad car, or any yard where any lumber, coal, or other goods or chattels are deposited and kept for the purpose of trade, with intent to break and carry away any part thereof or any fixture or other thing attached to or connected with the same.	Burglary: The unlawful entry of a structure to commit a felony or theft.
Theft/Other: This includes conduct previously known as larceny, larceny by trick, larceny by trust, embezzlement, theft of services and false pretenses. The Theft/Other category excludes theft of items from a motor vehicle or the motor vehicle itself, which are captured under other categories.	Larceny/Theft: The unlawful taking, carrying, leading or riding away of property from the possession or constructive possession of another.
Theft F/Auto: Theft of items from within a vehicle, excluding motor vehicle parts and accessories.
Stolen Auto: Theft of a motor vehicle (any automobile, self-propelled mobile home, motorcycle, truck, truck tractor, truck tractor with semi trailer or trailer, or bus).	Motor Vehicle Theft: The theft or attempted theft of a motor vehicle. "Motor vehicle" includes automobiles, trucks and buses, and other self-propelled vehicles that run on land surfaces and not rails.
Arson: The malicious burning or attempt to burn any dwelling, house, barn, or stable adjoining thereto, or any store, barn, or outhouse, or any shop, office, stable, store, warehouse, or any other building, or any steamboat, vessel, canal boat, or other watercraft, or any railroad car, the property, in whole or in part, of another person, or any church, meetinghouse, schoolhouse, or any of the public buildings in the District, belonging to the United States or to the District of Columbia.	Arson: Any willful or malicious burning or attempt to burn, with or without intent to defraud, a dwelling house, public building, motor vehicle or aircraft, personal property of another, etc.

Violent Crimes (DC Code)

Homicide

For the first time since the mid-1980s, DC has recorded fewer than 200 homicides per year for the past five years.

Sexual Assault

The number of sexual assaults in 2008 decreased by seven percent.

Robbery

The number of robberies citywide has decreased slightly from 2007.

Assault with a Dangerous Weapon

Assaults with a Dangerous Weapon have declined 18 percent since 2004.

Homicide Analysis

Homicides by Month

In 2008, May and July were the deadliest months for homicide in DC.

Homicide Rate

DC's homicide rate has remained below 40 per 100,000 residents since 2004.

	2004	2005	2006	2007	2008
Total Homicides	198	196	169	181	186
Rate per 100,000	36	34	29	31	31

Clearance Rate

The homicide clearance rate has exceeded 60 percent each of the last five years, exceeding 75 percent in 2008. It continues to remain higher than the national average for comparably-sized cities.

	2004	2005	2006	2007	2008
Number of Homicides	198	196	169	181	186
UCR Clearance Rate	60.6%	60.7%	64.5%	70.2%	75.3%

Note: The clearance rate is calculated by dividing the total number of homicide cases closed in a calendar year by the total number of homicides that occurred in that year. The cases closed can be for homicides that occurred in the current year or in prior years.

Victim Profile

The overwhelming majority of homicide victims continue to be black males; black females represent the second largest group.

For the purposes of the CJIS Weekly Arrest Report, the term "juvenile" used above is defined as individuals under the age of 18 years (≤ 17 years of age). These "juvenile" totals may include Title 16 cases where juveniles are tried as adults.

The above non-homicide arrests reflect arrests made by all agencies in the District of Columbia.

Traffic Safety

Fatalities, 2004–2008

Thirty-eight percent of the traffic fatalities in the District of Columbia have involved pedestrians. Pedestrian and total fatalities have dropped significantly in 2008 over 2007.

Speed-Related Fatalities

The number of fatalities on DC's roadways where speed was the primary contributing factor accounted for 35 percent of the total fatalities in 2008.

Pedestrian fatalities dropped 40 percent in 2008; total traffic fatalities were down 26 percent.

Calls For Service

Answering and dispatching both emergency and non-emergency calls are now the responsibility of the Office of Unified Communications, a District agency created in October 2004.

Calls for Service Trends

The total number of emergency calls for service in 2008 decreased two percent from 2007.

	2007	2008
Calls Received, Dispatched	620,565	619,193
Calls Received, Not Dispatched	33,303	22,823

Distribution of Calls (Not Dispatched)	5.1%	3.6%
Total 911 Calls for Service	653,868	642,016

A “call for service” is any call for which MPD action is initiated.

Priority I, II and III Calls for Service

While the number of Priority I and II calls for service increased between 2007 and 2008, the overall response time decreased.

Type of Call	2007		2008		Percent Change
	Call Count	Avg. Response Time	Call Count	Avg. Response Time	Call Count	Avg. Response Time

Priority III	150,993	17.74 min	135,738	16.7 min	-10.1%	-5.9%

Definitions of Priority I, II and III Calls

Priority I calls involve circumstances where an imminent threat to the safety of persons or the potential for significant property damage exists resulting in a Code 1 response being authorized. These calls will be dispatched without delay to any available unit within the PSA or police district, including to officials and watch commanders if no other unit is available. A sergeant, lieutenant and/or the watch commander will respond to the scene of all Priority I calls.

Priority II calls involve circumstances that require immediate dispatch and response, but most do not involve any imminent threat to the safety of persons or the potential for significant property damage. In the event such a threat is identified in any Priority II call, a Code 1 response can be authorized and it will be handled the same as a Priority I call. The dispatching of an MPD unit to a Priority II call shall not be delayed more than 15 minutes, at which time the dispatcher will advise the watch commander and the call will be assigned to any available unit.

Priority III calls involve routine requests for police services that involve no imminent threat to the safety of persons or the potential for significant property damage. The dispatching of an MPD unit to a Priority III call will not be delayed more than one hour, at which time the dispatcher will advise the watch commander, and a decision will be made on how to handle the call at that time.

Ranks of the Metropolitan Police Department

While every sworn member of the Department is a police officer by profession, he or she is further identified by rank.

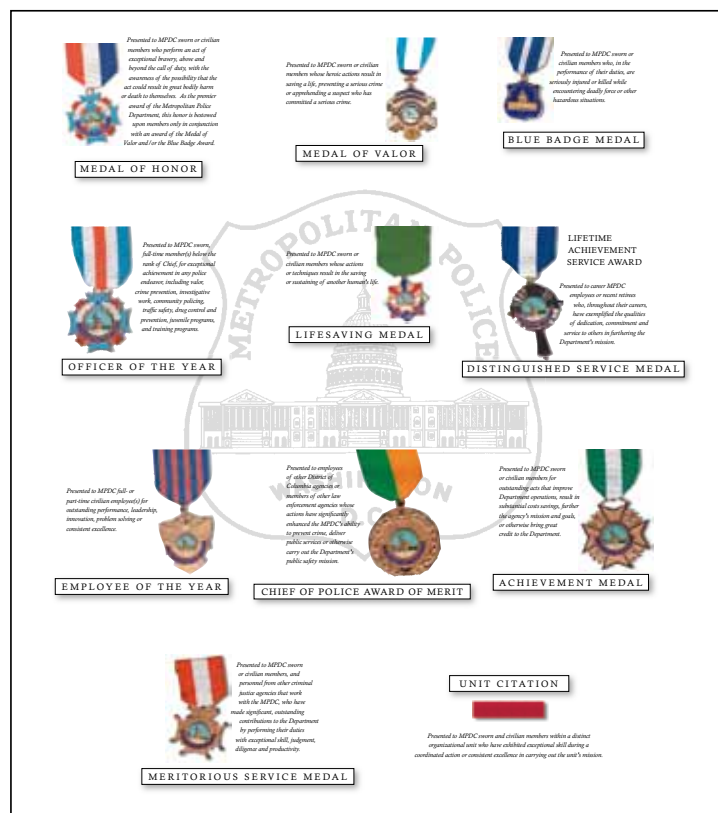

- Recruit Officer (attending the Metropolitan Police Academy)
- Officer/Master Patrol Officer/Senior Police Officer/Investigator
- Detective
- Sergeant
- Lieutenant
- Captain
- Inspector
- Commander
- Assistant Chief
- Chief of Police

Award Categories

In 2007, Chief Lanier implemented a new approach to recognizing the Department's sworn and civilian members. Rather than have one large ceremony at the end of the year, members now receive their awards shortly after the commendable action, at one of her regularly-held crime briefings. In 2008 over 400 members received awards.

Appendix A: CCTV Use in the District (2008)

The Metropolitan Police Department has a Closed Circuit Television (CCTV) system to support public safety operations in the nation's capital during major events, emergencies, or times of heightened alert for terrorism. The cameras in this CCTV system monitor public spaces only, with a focus on critical installations that have been identified as potential terrorism targets.

In addition to the 18 CCTV cameras activated during major events, the MPD has 74 Neighborhood Cameras designed to help combat crime in District of Columbia neighborhoods; the Neighborhood Cameras are active all the time.

JOCC/CCTV Activations

The following is a list of activations of the Department's Joint Operations Command Center (JOCC) during calendar year 2008. During JOCC activations, the Closed Circuit Television (CCTV) system is also activated.

Appendix B: FBI Uniform Crime Reporting Offenses

Like most other jurisdictions, the Metropolitan Police Department (MPD) reports crime two different ways. Primarily, the Department reports crimes that are defined in the District of Columbia Criminal Code. This is according to local law and is how officers classify offenses and makes arrests. The MPD also generates crime data using uniformly established guidelines that were developed by the Federal Bureau of Investigation as the Uniform Crime Reporting System, or UCR.

The MPD relies on the DC Code Index Offense information for daily operational and deployment decisions. Residents access this same information to make informed decisions. The MPD has included DC Code Index Offenses in this Annual Report in order to provide an accurate picture of crime trends as they are actually happening in the District of Columbia and because that is how crime is reported to the MPD by residents (see page 14). It is also how crime information is shared with the residents of the District of Columbia.

UCR Crime information has been included here so that residents have access to that standardized crime data. To compare crime trends to other jurisdictions using UCR data, please visit the FBI website.

FBI UCR Part I Crime Definitions

The UCR provides a consistent measure of serious crime that can be compared across police agencies.

Murder: The willful non-negligent killing of a person.

Forcible Rape: The carnal knowledge of a female forcibly and against her will.

Robbery: The taking or attempting to take anything of value from the care, custody, or control of a person or persons by force or threat of force or violence and/or by putting the victim in fear.

Aggravated Assault: An unlawful attack by one person upon another for the purpose of inflicting severe or aggravated bodily injury. This type of assault is usually accompanied by the use of a weapon or by means likely to produce death or great bodily harm.

Burglary: The unlawful entry of a structure to commit a felony or theft.

Larceny/Theft: The unlawful taking, carrying, leading or riding away of property from the possession or constructive possession of another.

Motor Vehicle Theft: The theft or attempted theft of a motor vehicle. "Motor vehicle" includes automobiles, trucks and buses, and other self-propelled vehicles that run on land surfaces and not rails.

Arson: Any willful or malicious burning or attempt to burn, with or without intent to defraud, a dwelling house, public building, motor vehicle or aircraft, personal property of another, etc.

FBI UCR Citywide Crime Trends

UCR Part I Crime

Overall crime increased 4.5 percent from 2007 to 2008, but it remains 11 percent lower than in 2003.

Note: Figures reported here may not match exactly what was published in the FBI's Crime in the United States because of modifications — such as late reporting, re-classification of some offenses, and discovery that some offenses were unfounded — made after the FBI's deadline.

UCR Part I Crime Rates (per 100,000)

The District's per-capita Index crime rate in 2008 was 23 percent less than what it was just 10 years earlier.

UCR Part I Crime Rates

The District's crime rate has decreased by nearly 23 percent over the past decade.
